THIS NATION has many valuable crops running up into the billions per year. The most valuable of all, although you couldn't sell it for ten cents or even give it away, is the crop of babies.

In the United States last year, 1,238,000 brand new babies were born. Only 821,000 deaths occurred, leaving out immigration, a population increase of 417,000. That is a great city added to the nation by the nation's mothers.

HOW FAST this Country grows, even with limited immigration! Our population is now more than 112,000,000, more than 7,000,000 increase since the census of 1920. That's good news, for what we need is another 100,000,000 people to do work now neglected and to consume the products of farms and factories.

MARGARET MARTIN, twenty-two years old, married and divorced, turned down her glass prematurely, by turning on the gas. A note for her mother said: "I am tired and hope to find rest where I am going."

POOR, TIRED girl, having endured twenty-two years of this experiment, she should have stuck it out, to see what would happen.

How many would go if all those tired and longing for rest should follow that young woman's example? Fortunately that question "Where am I going?" and the endless possibilities here, keep us struggling on.

"BURY ME in my lace dress," the young woman wrote. Dress enters deeply into the feminine mind. In Paris, a young woman, seeing her dress copied exactly by another woman, jumped into the river and drowned herself.

In Russia, two young girls, jealous of another girl's good clothing, cut off her head and took the clothing from her. Parents should realize what that means, understand the intense desire for adornment, and be careful how they thwart it.

ON LONG ISLAND, last Sunday, ten thousand looked on while the Ku Klux Initiated many women, with a lady "Kleagle" officiating. An eight-months-old Ku Klux baby was baptised by a clergyman in Ku Klux robes, the baby's mother, also in Ku Klux costume, attending. The baby was the only one with its head uncovered.

Nothing delights primitive man more than mystery. What Fourier called "The Cabalistic Passion" is as strong as ever.

THE KLAN feels strong enough to publish figures. Expert accountants in New York York, examining the Ku Klux books, announce 450,000 new members gained in one year. The year's receipts were over $2,000,000. Net profit, $926,000.

MAN IS fearfully and wonderfully made. Well may he praise the Lord, when he considers what human beings can endure if they MUST.

YOU READ that Englishmen again attempting to climb Mt. Everest are forced back by the cold, twenty-four degrees below zero, and the freezing, terrific winds that blow at the great heights.

CROSSING ON the New Jersey Central ferry from a week-end stay with his father at Lakewood, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., suggested that the eighth wonder of the world is the endurance of the human body. Crossing the Himalayan Mountains, at a height of 19,000 feet, swept by cold winds, unbearable to Europeans, there is a regular trail, in use for centuries. And over the trail Thibetan women trudge on their regularly appointed rounds, year in and year out, carrying heavy bundles on their backs for a few cents a day, and they think nothing of it.

Such women, upward bound, have passed groups of the Englishmen, in different stages of

WILD FIGHT IN R. I. SENATE

FISTS FLY IN BATTLE ON FLOOR

Women Spectators Caught in Free-for-All That Follows Attempted G. O. P. Coup

Providence, June 17.—One of the most riotous and disgraceful scenes ever staged in an American legislature followed a coup attempted by Republican politicians to prevent Lieutenant-Governor Felix A. Toupin from presiding over today's session of the State Senate.

Men and women were trampled upon by the political combatants.

Prepared to take control of the Senate at any cost, the Republican Senators, backed up deputy sheriffs assigned to duty by High Sheriff Jonathan Andrews, were in the Senate promptly at one o'clock.

The chamber and galleries were crowded. Men and women occupied seats on the floor.

A moment after two o'clock, daylight saving time, while Lieutenant-Governor Toupin was in the doorway of the Senate lobby, Senator Arthur A. Sherman mounted the rostrum and called the Senate to order.

Immediately the Senate was in an uproar. Republican and Democratic Senators clashed, with the spectators taking sides in a free-for-all fist fight.

Amid the screams of women and the cheering of partisans, word was sent to Governor Flynn that a riot was in progress in the Senate and

'PELLETIER NEVER GOT A DOLLAR'

Flaherty Testifies Corcoran Made That Admission in a Statement to Him

"Pelletier never received a dollar from Coakley or anybody else."

William J. Corcoran made this statement to former Special Assistant Attorney-General William Flaherty, the latter testified today just before the State rested its case at the trial of Corcoran and Daniel H. Coakley on a conspiracy charge in Cambridge.

Denial that Pelletier had received money was included in a statement made, Corcoran declared, "for the express purpose of hurting, injuring and damning Pelletier and Coakley."

Corcoran told Flaherty, the latter testified, that he wanted to do anything he could to ruin Pelletier and Coakley, and was willing to go to jail if he could take Coakley with him.

The State consumed nineteen days in offering its case. Coakley then started his defence without any opening address. He called former Attorney General Herbert Parker as the first defence witness and questioned him relative to the Stearns case.

Coakley, before opening his defence, however, cross-examined Attorney Flaherty closely regarding a statement given him by Corcoran in 1922.

VERY MUCH EXCITED.

Q.—Did Corcoran say to you "I reserve my right to say anything under oath, even to the most minor detail?" A.—Yes.

Q.—Was he composed when he

AUTOIST FINED $500 IN CASTLEMAN CASE

Eliot P. Davidson of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., went on trial in Superior Criminal Court today before Judge Broadhurst and a jury, charged with manslaughter.

Davidson was accused of causing the death of Dr. Philip Castleman on March 31, by operating an automobile so as to endanger the lives of the public and for not driving to the right of an intersecting street before making a turn.

Davidson pleaded guilty to operating so as to endanger the lives of the public and was fined $500. The other charges were placed on file.

HOODED MEN ENTER JAIL AFTER NEGRO

Bridgeton, N. J. June 17—Two hundred white-robed and hooded men participated in a demonstration here by filing into the County Jail and confronting Ephraim Cuff, a negro, recently sentenced to six months imprisonment for operating a motor car while drunk. Cuff had also been held for the grand jury recently on a charge involving a white girl.

One of the masked men called for a rope, but Cuff's cries for help brought policemen to the scene, who persuaded the masked throng to leave the jail.

PELLETIER NEVER GOT A DOLLAR, FLAHERTY QUOTES CORCORAN

STATE RESTS ITS CASE AFTER 19 DAYS OF EVIDENCE

made these statements to you? A.—He was very much excited.

Q.—Were his manner and attitude such as to make you doubt the truth of what he was saying? A.—I don't know about that.

Q.—Did you make any investigation of some of the stories he told you? A.—I didn't but someone connected with the Attorney-General's office did.

Q.—Did they find whether they were true or not? A.—In one instance they found it was not true, as I recall it.

Q.—Was any attempt made to have Corcoran take oath to some of these things before the Grand Jury? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Corcoran say to you that he wanted to injure Coakley and Pelletier in any way possible? A.—Yes.

Q.—And did he say to you that if he wanted to do anything he could ruin Pelletier and Coakley? A.—Yes.

NOT A DOLLAR.

Q.—Now, as to this matter of Mr. K——, was that investigated by you or anybody connected with the Attorney-General's office? A.—Yes, by Mr. Marshall.

Q.—And didn't he find this story was absolutely made out of whole cloth? Excluded.

Q.—Did you ever hear anything which would support that story? Excluded.

Q.—Did Corcoran ever say to you that Pelletier had never received a dollar from Coakley or anybody else? A.—He said that.

District Attorney Reading in redirect examination, asked Flaherty for the entire conversation with Corcoran in New York when Corcoran said the stories in his statement were false.

Flaherty replied "Mr. Corcoran told me in that interview in New York that a certain Boston newspaper had made an offer to him for the publication of the story of his career. Corcoran told me he couldn't stand up under his claims but that he was in a position to make a lot of money.

ADVISED AGAINST IT.

"I told him he had better not publish it if he was not sure of his claims, as it would set the machinery of the law in motion to bring him back for trial. I told him he had better let a sleeping dog lie. I told him he should do that for his future in New York, if he intended to enter business, and for the sake of his family.

"I told him the Attorney-General had not quite made up his mind what to do in his case and that he should go slow and not tie himself up with such a proposition. He asked if I could wire to the newspaperman in question and to send the telegram from some place other than New York.

"I wrote a telegram and dropped it off the train at a way station on my way to Boston."

Q.—Was that the first time he said his statements were false? A.—Yes, in the Spring of 1922.

Q.—Do you know what the relations between Coakley and Corcoran were at the time Corcoran said his statements were false? A.—I assume they were hostile.

DURING PELLETIER TRIAL.

Q.—How do you know? A.—Well, one of the angles discussed was that if he made up his mind to publish this, Coakley would be after him, too. He said Coakley was after him anyway.

Q.—Was the case of Barbour presented at either the Tufts or Pelletier trials before the Supreme Court? A.—No.

Q.—Were the cases of Mr. A—, Mr. F——, Mr. Z——, Mr. B—— and Mr. C—— presented at either the Tufts or Pelletier trials? A.—No.

Q.—Was the case of John Sullivan presented at these trials? A.—No.

Q.—Was this statement by Corcoran that his stories were false, made before the Tufts case? A.—No—after.

Q.—Before or after the Pelletier trial? A.—After the close of the Attorney-General's case in the Pelletier trial.

Herbert Parker, former Attorney-General, was among the party subpoenaed by the defense to appear. A conference at the bench followed the close of the State's case.

QUIZZES PARKER.

Coakley launched his defence without an opening address. Former Attorney - General Parker took the stand and was asked by Coakley regarding a conference between Parker, Coakley, Storer and Fuller in Parker's office, relative to the Stearns divorce case. Parker was shown several letters in the case, which were marked for identification.

Q.—Did Storer say in the course of that interview he was counsel for Mrs. Stearns and Captain Stearns also? A.—I don't recall him saying that, but he did give the impression that he was interested in both parties. I don't recall his exact words.

Parker testified that in his recollection, Storer was in a position to determine what was to be done, by consent of the parties. Following the conference, Parker went to the Lowell courthouse, he said. He thought that Coakley and he were called to the bench by Judge Waite at the Stearns divorce hearing.

The court raised the question whether he should continue to sit in the case and that Parker and Coakley told the judge they were content to have him go on.

PICKED COAKLEY.

Parker testified that, if his memory, Coakley in effect said that provision for alimony had been made. He also recalled, he testified, that Fuller said he had made an agreement with Storer for a division of property.

Parker testified that later in the afternoon the question was asked as to whether Storer or Coakley was representing Mrs. Stearns. Parker recollected that Coakley remarked: "Why not takes Mrs. Stearns' own statement."

Coakley offered to withdraw, witness testified, while she was consulted. Mrs. Stearns then told Parker and Fuller that Coakley was her counsel.

FIND NEW CLEW TO MISSING AIKEN GIRL

Providence, R. I., June 17.—Hope that little Viola Aiken may still be alive, given up by the authorities trying to find the child, stirred into life today with the disclosure of new evidence.

The latest set of circumstances unearthed by the police tend to show that Viola and her seven-year-old brother, John, Jr., were "in the way."

There are three Aiken children.

Of these James, the baby, is said by Mrs. Annie Keough, mother-in-law of Mrs. John Aiken, mother of the child missing from Mowry farm since May 24, to be the illegitimate child of James Graham, the farmer with whom Mrs. Aiken made her home following a separation from her husband.

IN A HOME.

Mrs. Keough told the authorities that some time ago she heard Graham and Mrs. Aiken discuss plans to place Viola and John in a home. She said no mention was made of placing James in a home, which strengthened her belief that James is Graham's son.

Subsequent to this discussion efforts were made by Mrs. Aiken to place John and Viola in a home, but she was unable to do this when it developed she was not penniless and could support her children.

The only other way to get rid of the children was to give them away, Mrs. Keogh said, and this too was discussed by Graham and Mrs. Aiken.

On top of this statement from Mrs. Keough came important facts from C. F. Tucker, a former constable of Harmony, R. I., and at present owner of a garage at the junction of the Providence-Putnam turnpike.

INTERESTING TABLEAU.

On the day that Viola was reported missing from Mowry farm, an interesting tableau presented itself in front of Tucker's garage, with Tucker the only spectator. A car came down the dirt road which leads to the turnpike. This road is the only one by which a car could travel, bound from Mowry farm to Harmony.

The car, a closed auto, stopped on the dirt road. Nobody got out. There was no move on the part of anybody in the car to approach the garage. Apparently the people in the car had a rendezvous at this point.

This was the thought that flashed through the mind of Tucker as he watched the car.

Sure enough, a moment later another car—a Dodge touring car—came up the road on turnpike, bound from Providence. It stopped a few feet away from the dirt road. A man got out and walked over to the closed car.

Somebody in the closed car handed a child out to the man from the touring car. The child was wrapped in a shawl. The man took the child, placed it on the road for a moment and engaged in conversation with somebody in the closed car.

The man then picked up the child, and returning to his car, drove away in the direction of Putnam, Ct. The other car turned around and went back in the direction from which it had come—a direction which would ultimately land its passengers at Providence.

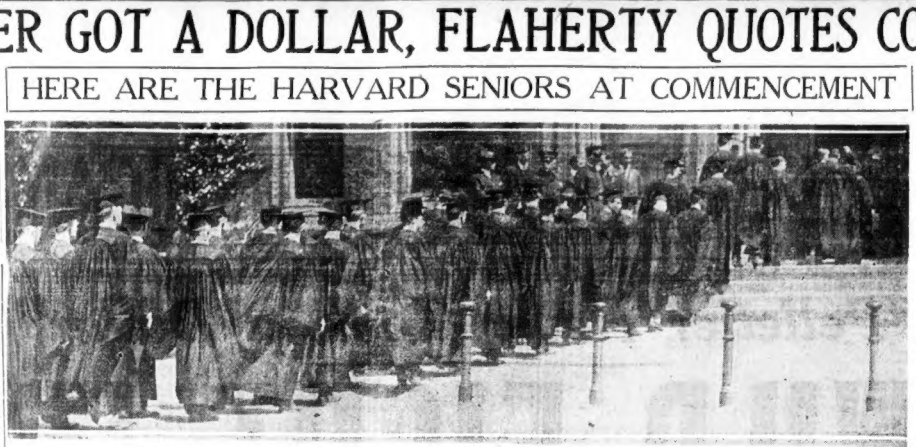
These incidents, transpiring on the day that Viola disappeared, led the authorities to believe that little Viola may have been given away. Tucker was questioned at length by Chief of Police Aiken of North Smithfield and Attorney-General Carpenter.

They are to resume questioning of Mrs. Aiken and Graham, who are locked up at the House of Correction in Howard on a technical charge.

Dix Fined for Speeding

Santa Barbara, Cal., June 17.—John A. Dix, former Governor and Democratic leader of New York, was fined $15 for speeding. Mr. Dix was calling socially on the judge when he happened to remember a ticket for travelling thirty-eight miles an hour.

HERE ARE THE HARVARD SENIORS AT COMMENCEMENT



MARCHING TO THE CLASS DAY EXERCISES IN THE MEMORIAL BUILDING

Ergo ave atque vale, fratres, patres, matres, magistri—ac Harvardia!

That's what Charlton MacVeigh, '24, pulled in the class oration read during the exercises at Class Day in Harvard today, and it got a big hand, so it must be a nifty.

For the rest of Mr. MacVeigh's talk, he spoke of Harvard very much as Burton of Ohio and Mondell of Wyoming spoke of the Republican party at Cleveland last week. One got the impression after listening to Charlton's little spiel that Harvard was a fairish college.

The day began with senior class chapel service at Appleton Chapel with an address by Dr. Francis G. Peabody, followed by the exercises at Sanders Theatre. In the afternoon there will be tree exercises for seniors only and stadium exercises, and in the evening dancing in Memorial Hall and in the gymnasium, and singing by the glee club on Widener steps.

Franklin H. Nichols was on the program as ivy orator, Harold D. Goulard as odist and Oliver La Farge as poet.

Towards evening there is to be a confetti battle in which it is strictly understood that the confetti to be thrown is not the Irish type. Seniors and graduates will then wend their way back to Harvard square, and the early evening will be given up to wassail, with scores of feeds scheduled.

HAD TO BE COOK, SAYS EX-WIFE OF LAWSON

bin counsel, John P. Feeney, Mrs. Blake declared the children were not well-cared for or dressed properly and that they had been ill.

They were awarded to the custody of their father after the divorce was granted to the former Mrs. Lawson on the charge of desertion. Lawson had originally brought suit against her. It was Mrs. Lawson's second marriage.

Two of the children, Thomas and Arnold, Jr., were in court with their father today. The other, Jean and Vera, who are attending a private school, were absent.

Attorney Feeney took the boys up to his bench, so that Judge Fosdick could judge for himself as to whether Mrs. Blake's charges were well founded.

They had no appearance of being improperly cared for or ill clothed.

Mrs. Blake testified that the children treated her disrespectfully, and she had lost a measure of their affection. Asked if she knew any reason for this condition, she replied she laid it to the fact that her former husband had embraced a different religion lately.

Mrs. Blake declared that following the divorce she had been penniless until last Summer when she was married to her present husband, whom she characterized as a retired banker.

She said her former husband was to be handed $40 a week and sent the boys to a school in Maine. On her honeymoon last Summer she said she visited the school only to find the boys had returned to their father in Milton.

Mrs. Blake said on one occasion she met her eldest daughter Vera on the street in Boston and bought her a soda. She added she gave Vera $2 for lunch, which the girl otherwise would not have had.

She described a visit to the school which her daughters attended, at which time they told her she embarrassed them, as other girls asked them if Mr. Blake was their father. She said the girls were very fond of her present husband.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Feeney, Mrs. Blake said after the divorce she went to live with a Mrs. Curtin, who was kind to her. She displayed signs of embarrassment when testifying that she cooked for Mrs. Curtin to pay for her board.

"Don't be ashamed of it," said Attorney Feeney," it was honest work."

"I wasn't used to it," Mrs. Blake replied. "I was an only child."

was rumored that Mussolini had offered his resignation as a result of the political scandal over the kidnaping and slaying of Socialist Deputy Giacomo Matteotti.

It was reported this evening that reconstruction of the Mussolini cabinet was under consideration.

Important government developments are expected within twenty-four hours.

Guards along the Italian frontiers were reinforced to prevent suspects in the kidnaping from escaping the country.

Filippo Filippelli, former editor of Corriere D'Italia, most prominent Fascisti newspaper in Rome, was arrested while attempting to reach the French coast in a motor boat. His whereabouts were discovered by reporters.

Cesare Rossi, for whom a warrant was issued, has not yet been found. He was formerly head of the Press Bureau of the Interior Department, but resigned on Saturday, his resignation being accepted immediately by Premier Mussolini.

The residence of former Under Home Secretary Finzi is being watched by police. He resigned at the same time as Signor Rossi.

About a dozen arrests have been made. The other prisoners included Benaldi, former editor of the newspaper Temp, charged with aiding Filipselli to escape; Albert Vopi, who was arrested at Lecco charged with complicity in the kidnaping of Matteotti last Tuesday, and other less prominent persons.

5,000 Fascists Pour into Rome to Keep Order

Rome, June 17 (I.N.S.).—Five thousand black shirted Fascist militiamen, fully armed, poured into Rome today from the provinces to keep order and to protect the Fascist organization.

Their arrival resulted from the general excitement and unrest over the kidnaping and slaying of Socialist Deputy Giacomo Matteotti one week ago today. Political enemies of Fascismo attributed the crime to members of the Fascisti.

The Fascist warriors marched through the streets singing patriotic songs.

Attempts to Induce General Strike Fails

Naples, June 17.—Attempts to induce a general strike have met with but little success. Only half a dozen factories are not working.

Several hundred Socialists today followed Arturo Labriola, Socialist deputy and former Minister of Labor, along the streets today and, surrounding him in San Ferdinando square, asked him to speak.

Labriola, however, invited the crowd to disband and cried: "Viva Socialism! Viv Matteotti!"

The government has issued energetic instructions to prevent disorder and troops are being kept in readiness.

SEEK CRAZED ATHLETE WHOM SWAM HUDSON

New York, June 17.—State troopers and police are scouring the Palisades cliffs near Alpine, N. J., for Leo Giebel, who leaped from an ambulance, tore off his clothes and swam the Hudson River. Giebel, a member of the New York Athletic Club, was formerly long distance swimming champion of the United States. He had suddenly become crazed in the New York National Guard camp at Peekskill, where he was training for the Olympic events. When last seen, Giebel was disappearing naked into the woods opposite Yonkers.

WILD BATTLE IN R. I. SENATE

that the officers of the law would not recognize the constituted authority.

Meanwhile Sheriff Andrews took a place on the floor and finally succeeded in separating the combatants.

Governor Flynn pushed his way through the crowd, mounted the rostrum, shook hands with the lieutenant-governor and cautioned the audience with a wave of his hand.

The riot subsided and conferences were held between the Lieutenant-Governor and Senators Quinn and Barry on the rostrum. A few moments later sheriff Andrews was summoned to the rostrum by Governor Flynn and a conference followed.

Thomas F. McMann, national president of the Textile Workers of America, who was with Lieutenant-Governor Toupin when the riot broke out also went to the rostrum and joined the conferees.

POLICE CALLED.

Shortly after the riot ended police reserves from every precinct in the city under the direction of Sergeant Flemming of the First Station arrived at the State House.

The trouble began when Senator Sherman on mounting the rostrum ignored the customary practice of sounding the bell to summon the Senators to their seats, banged the gavel and called the Senate to order.

Senator Quinn rose to a point of order and stated that Senator Sherman had no right to call the Senate to order as that body was in recess and the lieutenant governor would call it to order.

Senator Sherman disregarded the the remarks of Senator Quinn and ordered Clerk Dooley to call the roll. Senator Quinn objected saying, "He will not call the roll, I will not let him."

SCRAMBLING MASS.

Dooley started to call the roll and Senator Quinn made his way to his side and pushed him away from the desk. The two men grappled and Secretary of State Sprague went to the assistance of Dooley, while spectators came to the aid of Quinn.

Immediately the Senate was in an uproar. Senator Sanderson climbed on a chair at the press table and lifted a volume of Senate Journals and attempted to strike Senator Quinn over the head when he was thwarted by a reporter.

At this point the riot broke out and the middle of the Senate Chamber was a mass of scrambling men and women.

Republican and Democratic Senators clashed and the spectators took a hand. The riot subsided with the arrival of Governor Flynn.

Following the conference the crowd became uneasy and started to heckle Secretary of State Sprague and Reading Clerk Dooley.

ASKS QUIET.

Governor Flynn sensing that the situation might get beyond the control of the deputy sheriffs and police reserves stationed outside the Senate chamber, requested the spectators to be quiet.

He said: "It is not my intention to interfere in the proceedings of this body, but each and every Senator must realize that the Lieutenant Governor is the constitutionally elected presiding officer of the Senate.

CAMPAIGN TO CURE INDIANS OF TRACHOMA

Washington, June 17.—A campaign to wipe out trachoma, an eye disease, which has been epidemic among Indians, will be started July 1, say special physicians of the Indian office and the Public Health Service. Plans for the crusade, announced today by the Interior Department, call for operations first in Arizona and New Mexico, and later will be extended to all Indian reservations. Temporary hospitals will be established in Indian school buildings unoccupied during the vacation period.

FARMER-LABOR SOUNDS THIRD PARTY CALL

Mahoney, in Keynote Speech, Praises and Flays La Follette in Same Breath

Convention Hall, St. Paul, June 17 I.N.S.).—A rallying call for Progressives the nation over to unite in a new third party movement to capture the government "for the workers" was sounded in the keynote speech of William S. Mahoney, temporary chairman, to the Farmer-Labor-Progressive convention here today.

Although plans had been laid for the convention to indorse Senator La Follette for the Presidency, Mahoney, aiming to appease the particularly disturbed elements, slapped La Follette vigorously for denouncing the convention for its communistic attainments. Yet, in the same breath, made it plain that La Follette was the only outstanding Progressive to whom the convention could turn and hope to land votes in the coming Presidential election.

The whole speech was built around La Follette. Mahoney did not fail to lambast Senator Wheeler, whose name La Follette, and yet, rather in the manner of an explanation of the Wisconsin senator's denunciation of the convention, said:

BLAMES POLITICIANS.

"The unusual character of the attack inclines one to the belief that the affair was not of his own making, but was hashed up by local politicians in Washington opposed to the organization of a National Farmer-Labor Party and induced Senator La Follette to assassinate a movement that threatened to dispense with the service of high priced Labor lobbyists."

Scarcely had Mahoney relieved La Follette of taking the initiative himself for the attack upon the convention, than he declared "it was a cruel and unwarranted attitude for La Follette to take."

"When this convention was first projected, last November, it was never realized at the time so many and such difficulties would be encountered," continued Mahoney.

"It was thought it was the thing every progressive element in America wanted and would gladly give it full support to.

AGAINST OPPOSITION.

"We have since learned, to a great surprise and sorrow, that we are encroaching of sacred ground and infringing on the prerogatives of certain would-be great political leaders and organizations and instead of getting whole-hearted and powerful support, we have to encounter the most energetic and malignant opposition."

In this connection Mahoney specifically mentioned La Follette, the American Federation of Labor and the conference for progressive action, which meets in Cleveland July 4.

"But the character and extent of this very opposition," he added, "has had the effect of stimulating our desire and determination to see this convention through, even though La Follette himself was inveigled to joining his enemies in the effort to kill it."

Vituperation and wrath were mixed in Mahoney's denunciation of "predatory interests and special privileges" which, he charged, "rule and rob and revel in luxury."

SCRAMBLING MASS.

"Once let the working class, the men and women on the farms and in the industrial centres understand that they have common interests as useful workers against legalized robbery and that the government can be taken over and made to function for their benefit it means the end of exploiters and social parasites," Mahoney declared.

In great detail, Mahoney traced how the convention was organized, and how, he said, the predominant sentiment of the conference last November believed La Follette would be the ideal candidate.

"It was realized that La Follette's personal influence would attract a larger number of voters than any other person, who might head and who would detach them from their former foolish party affiliations," he said.

"It was felt that should he run, the support of the convention should be given him, but if he failed then a national Farmer-Labor ticket should be provided.

"It was not primarily a LaFollette movement, but the convention as a movement with LaFollette as an independent factor in promoting the program of education and organization."

La Follette requested that the convention should be postponed until after the Democratic convention, Mahoney said, but the leaders of the movement had in mind "that the important thing was to make provisions that a candidate would be named before the Democratic convention was held in order to prevent a possible diversion of the progressive forces, which might result from the nomination of a pseudo progressive candidate at the Democratic ticket."

It was clear that Mahoney referred to William G. McAdoo.

"Then something happened. Stories of 'Communist' control and intrigue began to emanate from Washington—down where they put over the Teapot Dome steal, the looting of the Veterans' Bureau and many other shady and scandalous transactions," said Mahoney.

"This was an disconcerting as it was false," he charged.

BEAUTY SUES MILLIONAIRE CLUBMAN FOR $10,000 HEART BALM

SAYS HE FAILED TO KEEP PACT TO PAY HER $1,750 A MONTH

New York, June 17.—In a suit that will bring her, if won, at least half a million dollars, Mrs. Muriel Buell, beautiful divorcee, has begun an effort to force Jefferson Livingston, wealthy clubman and retired manufacturer, to pay her $1,750 a month for life, as she claims he promised if she would not sue him for breach of promise.

Another of those intimate disclosures that are so trite in the supposedly fashionable fifties and exclusive Park avenue squares thus comes to end in the court of law.

Mrs. Buell, who has resumed the use of her maiden name since her divorce in the West several years ago, conferred with her attorney, Frederick E. Klein, after her breach of contract suit against Livingston had opened in the Supreme Court, Westchester, with a motion to have the defendant examined before trial.

The lovely plaintiff now resides in Mamaroneck, but has lived in various apartments in New York. She is twenty-eight. Her deep brown eyes contrast with her short, gold hair. She wore a smart gray costume, hat, shoes, tailored frock and wrap. Her father was a prominent physician of San Francisco.

Livingston, whose home is in New York is the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, is sixty-three, a rotund man with graying hair.

BEAUTY ANGERED

Mrs. Buell claims in March, 1923, she entered into an agreement in writing with Livington by the terms of which she promised to refrain from bringing suit for breach of promise against him in return for a monthly settlement of $1,750.

The original of this alleged written agreement is in possession of her attorney, as are also photostatic copies of it, showing Livington's signature in his own hand writing, the attorney said. What he declared as a copy of the agreement was shown to Justice Mortchauser.

Mrs. Buell, angered by accusations in an affidavit filed by Samuel Untermyer, Livingston's attorney, opposing the motion, in which the elderly clubman denied he had made such an agreement, spoke freely of her plight.

Not only did Livingston refuse to make the monthly payments after eight months had passed, but he walked out of her apartment in Park avenue, where she had entertained him before the rift, leaving bills for her to pay totaling $30,000, Mrs. Buell declared hotly.

$8,000 IN A MONTH

Mrs. Buell claims that late in 1922 she told Livingston she intended suing for breach of promise. They had several discussions, she declares, and Livingston promised to fix it up. The agreement was the result.

From April until November, 1923, he paid her $1,750 every month, she said, then refused to continue the payments.

Livingston, through his attorney, who characterized the suit as a bold stroke, denied having promised to marry her or having agreed to pay her any money. As a separate defense, he stated that he gave her sums of money from April 1922, to November 1923, while alleged clandestine relations existed between them.

"There was never at any time any talk of marriage between us," his affidavit declared.

Livingston is reputed to be many times a millionaire. He was before retirement head of the Davis-Snyder Preserve Company, which makes catsup and owns a large racing stable of thoroughbreds in Kentucky.

He declares he broke with the plaintiff because her demands for money became exorbitant, saying that he gave her as much as $8,000 in one month. He was introduced to her over the telephone, he said, and called on her the following evening at the Belmont Hotel, where she was then living.

HIS SISTER PRESENT

Mrs. Buell filed an answer to his accusations and denials.

"I was introduced to the defendant by Matt J. Wynn, Esq., a racing official," she stated.

His statement that he had never spoken of marriage to her branded as false, also his remarks concerning their friendship.

Livingston was accompanied by his sister, Miss Minnie Livingston, on the occasion of her first call upon her, Mrs. Buell said. Thereafter her sister made up a threesome for dinner, the theatre, and supper parties.

She was also introduced by Livingston to two other sisters, Mrs. Clara Street and Mrs. Louise Pearce, Mrs. Buell declared, pointing to his evident wish that she meet his family as proof of his intention to marry her.

"A woman friend of Mr. Livingston caused our first disagreement," said Mrs. Buell. "She visited New York and stayed in my apartment. She started trouble, as women do."

"I did not wish to give our disagreements publicity, but I can't allow Mr. Livingston's base accusations to go unchallenged ,"she added.

She then told of the real break in November last she put detectives on Livingston's trail. The detectives trailed him to an apartment in East Thirty-fourth street, Mrs. Buell said, and, breaking in the door, found him with a female companion.

"He became furious with me for discovering him," she declared, "and refused to come to see me. He would not pay my bills and stopped making the monthly payment of $1,750."

14-INCH GUN TURRET, SCENE OF EXPLOSIONS

In this turret took place the blasts that killed forty-eight and injured fifty of the officers and crew of the U. S. S. Mississippi while at gun practice in Los Angeles harbor. The tragedy in forward turret No. 2 was one of the greatest suffered by the navy in many years. In small inset shown a navy tug leaving the Mississippi with some of the victims, bound for the Hospital Ship Mercy. At top is a close up of sailors taking the dead and injured up the, gangway on the Hospital Ship Mercy which speeded to the aid of the wounded after the explosions.

KLAN LOSES IN MAINE PRIMARY

Brewster, Choice of Klux, Loses to Farrington in the Gubernatorial Primaries

Portland, Me., June 17—The vote in more than 600 of the 635 precincts in Maine's Republican primaries gave Senator Bert M. Fernald an overwhelming victory for renomination, and gave President Frank G. Farrington of the State Senate a margin of 1314 votes over Senator Ralph O. Brewster for the nomination for Governor.

The latter contest, in which Brewster had proposed a constitutional amendment to prevent use of State funds for sectarian schools, and in which he was supported by the Ku Klux Klan, polled a much greater vote than that for Senator Fernald won by more than 10,000 votes.

In the second congressional district, Congressman Wallace H. White, Jr., was renominated over Cyrus N. Blanchard of Wilton, and will have as his Democratic opponent at the September elections Bertrand G. McIntire of Norway, who was nominated over the opposition of Albert W. Plummer of Lisbon.

The vote of the candidates for the Republican nominations for Senator and Governor from six precincts follow:

For Senator, United States Senator Bert M. Fernald, 35,672; Congressman Frank E. Guernsey, 29,822; Louis A. Jack of Lisbon, 13,774 (495 precincts).

For Governor, President Frank G. Farrington of State Senate, 16,834; Senator Ralph O. Brewster, 15,767. These figures included fifteen of the fourteen precincts in Portland and five of the seven precincts in Bangor.

In the contest for gubernatorial nomination, Brewster's greatest strength was gained in those places where Ku Klux Klan organizations were reputed most numerous.

Portland, home of Brewster and a Klan centre, was an exception. The vote, with nine precinct missing, showed 4,624 for Farrington, and 4,063 for Brewster.

Actor Frank Keenan, 68, to Wed Young Music Teacher

Los Angeles, June 17.—Frank Keenan, sixty-eight, veteran actor of the stage and screen, and Miss Margaret White, Los Angeles music teacher, will be married in Honolulu within the next week or two, Keenan's secretary announced here.

Miss White, who is in her early twenties, is said to have been a protégé of Mrs. Keenan, who died suddenly April 25, last, while watching her husband's performance in a play at the Writers' Club in Hollywood.

VOWED TO WADE IN 'BLOOD OF CATHOLICS'

Ebensburg, Pa., June 17 (A.P.)—Threats made by residents of Lilly against wedding Kit Klub Klansmen on April 5 last, prior to the fight between the two factions in which three Lillyites met death, were testified to today by State witnesses in the trial of Wm. Stoffanan, young Lilly coal miner, whose indictment for murder grew out of the disorder.

Francis Squires of Cassandra testified he went to Lilly on a freight train the night of the trouble and that when he arrived in the village he saw a crowd loitering on a corner.

The Klansmen he said, were holding a demonstration on a nearby hillside, and one man in the crowd yelled, "Come on, boys; a spick of dynamite will do it." Another man said:

"Come on, we'll go up and drive them out," the witness continued. The crowd, he said, started toward the hill but disbanded a few minutes later.

Squires testified that he saw Harold Bradley and Dan Carnes, two of the Lilly defendants, and another man holding and threatening to hang a fourth man. "I've hit him just three times. We are going to wade in Catholic blood up to our knees," Bradley said, according to the witness.

A few minutes later one of the men remarked "We won't hang him. We'll take him back to the train," squires testified. On cross-examination the witness said Bradley did not qualify when he made the statement about "wading in Catholic blood."

ONE KILLED, 7 INJURED BY AUTOS

Roxbury Man Dies on Way to the Hospital After Car Crashes Near Palmer

One man was killed, and seven persons injured, several of them seriously, in a number of automobile accidents that ushered in "The Glorious Seventeenth" today.

The dead man was George M. Speight of No. 145 Howard street, Roxbury, who died on the way to the Palmer Hospital after the car in which he was riding had crashed into the abutment of an underpass Roxbury, "Goldie" Vinel and Minnie Isaac Schmara, No. 4 Plant street, Roxbury ,"Goldie" Vinel and Minnie Schmara, both of Jamaica Plain, who were also in the car, were taken to the hospital with slight injuries.

The machine was proceeding in a thick fog when it rammed the abutment, dislodging a large stone which fell upon the car.

CRASHED INTO TREE.

John H. Petit of No. 324 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, sustained a severe scalp wound and an injury to his right hand when the truck he was driving crashed into a tree on Washington street, Dedham. He was taken to the Norwood Hospital in an unconscious condition. The steering gear of the truck is said to have broken.

Miss Stella Powers, 22, of No. 240 Homenway street, was seriously injured when struck by an automobile at Boylston street and Massachusetts avenue. The woman sustained a fractured left rib, lacerations of the forehead and multiple contusions and bruises.

IN COLLISION.

Mrs. William A. Malloy and her father-in-law, John T. Malloy, were shaken up and bruised when the car operated by her husband, who lives at No. 28 Gordon street, Waltham, was struck by another machine on North Beacon street, Brighton.

The driver of the other machine, William G. S. Boyson, No. 33 Glenwood avenue, Cambridge, in Brighton court was found guilty of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and was sentenced to one month in the House of Correction. He was also fined $5 for drunkenness.

COONLEY GOING TO PRAGUE CONFERENCE

Howard Coonley, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and George W. Coleman, organizer of the New England Sociological Conference, will represent Boston at the International Management Congress to be held in Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 21 to 24.

Both will be members of a large group of American engineers who will present papers at the Congress.

LADY LUDLOW'S SON HELD FOR PERJURY

London, June 17.—Sir Derrick Julius Wernher, who until recently lived in America, has been detained on a warrant charging him with perjury alleged to have been committed in the bankruptcy court in May, 1912. He is the son of the late Julius Wernher and the present Lady Ludlow, part of whose collection of historic jewels were stolen last week.

BODIES OF SLAIN NAVY GUNNERS ARE GUARDED

San Pedro, Cal., June 17.—Armed military and police guards stood watch in San Pedro over the morgue where the bodies of the 48 gunners killed in the U. S. S. Mississippi explosion are resting, following storming of the morgue and threats to blow it up by alleged I. W. W. members.

"It should be 4800 dead instead of 48," police said the "radicals" had shouted at the door of the morgue.

The hand of a dead man, whose body was being moved from turret No. 2 aboard the U. S. S. Mississippi last Thursday, after the first explosion, touched the selective switch in the death chamber and fired the 14-inch rifle, injuring four men with its recoil, it was established by the naval court of inquiry.

TOUCHED SWITCH.

George C. Ogletree, petty officer, member of the crew of the Mississippi and one of the first of the rescue party to enter the turret after the ship disaster, testified:

"It was impossible for us to get the body through the hatch head first. And we were turning it about when one of the arms fell on the selective switch."

The resultant shot nearly hit the steamship Yale passing out of the harbor.

OTHER TURRET BAD.

Walter C. Ebel, turret captain of turret No. 3 of the Mississippi, corroborated the evidence Saturday of Francis Mejewski, plug-man in turret No. 2, when the blast occurred, that the air pressure to clean out the gun barrels between shots and to close the gun breeches was weak.

Ebel said:

"I called the air compressor room and asked for 150 pounds, but after the second salvo it continued to decrease until at the end of the twelfth salvo it showed only 110 pounds."

Yes, Lucey the Cobbler Should Stick to Last

Northampton, June 17.—Shoemaker, stick to your last.'

If anybody in the world, and points west, realizes the patness of this old proverb, it's Jim Lucey, cobbler friend of President Coolidge, who today, returned from the Armageddon at Cleveland, found in his shop a week's accumulation of shoes to be repaired.

Mr. Lucey, his days as a reporter over, will have to work overtime for a month, with the hot weather coming on, too, in order to catch up on his work. The Gothic street basement was simply loaded with down-at-heel shoes, for all Northampton is eager to have its shoes mended by the man who dared to predict that Calvin Coolidge would be nominated at Cleveland.

"Even before the convention opened," said Mr. Lucey today, viciously attacking a heel, "I went on record, in black and white, as saying Mr. Coolidge would be nominated."

"Isn't it a fact that you also predicted that Marion Leroy Burton would be nominated for Vice-President because he also came from Northampton?"

"I did," admitted Lucey, pounding away at the heel. "And it seems to me that he might have been nominated. It would have been wonderful to have had two Northampton men running on the same ticket for President and Vice-President. And to think that I've made shoes for both of them!"

"Aren't you going to report the Democratic convention?"

"Why should I? There's nobody from Northampton that's a candidate. Besides, look at these shoes. If I stay away another week, the whole town will have to go bare foot."

James Lucey

1 KILLED IN FIGHT TO FREE NEGROES

New Orleans, La., June 17.—One negro is dead, one white man seriously wounded and several negroes badly hurt as a result of a wholesale shooting at Leesville, La., when negroes attempted to liberate two negro prisoners, according to word received today from Leesville.

MOTHER, SON, KILLED BY GAS IN MEDFORD

Mrs. Marion L. Jones, aged thirty-six, of No. 26 Bradshaw avenue, Medford, and her three-year-old son, Chandler T. Jones, were found dead in the kitchen of their home.

Death was due to asphyxiation.

Police believe the mother murdered her child and committed suicide. The bodies were discovered by the husband and father, Percy L. Jones, a salesman in a Boston department store, on his return from work.

The doors of the kitchen were locked and the jets of the kitchen range open.

The husband, forced to work late on account of the approach of a holiday, did not return home until shortly before midnight. He found both doors to the kitchen locked. Unsuspectingly, he forced one of the doors. The odor of gas aroused his suspicion but when he watched on the electric lights and found his wife and child cold in death he became hysterical.

Jones summoned the Malden police, who responded with a pulmotor, but after an hour's work the attempt at resuscitation were abandoned. The mother and child had been dead for several hours.

The husband was unable to make any coherent statement to the police. He declared that when he left for his place of employment his wife was evidently in the best of spirits. He declared that there was no motive for suicide and murder, of which he knew.

The Jones were married five years ago. The husband is thirty-eight years of age and their only child would have been three years old in September.

BLAST INJURES THREE IN NORTH END STREETS

Two men and a child were injured, one of them seriously, and a fire alarm box destroyed when a cover was blown from an Edison Electric Illuminating Company manhole at Salem and Prince streets, North End, today.

The injured who were struck by debris, were Philip Lenzi, fifty years old, of Charter street. Incurred wound of the left hip, multiple injuries of the body and concussion. Bernard Wolf, twenty-three years, No. 168 Belmont street, Malden, and Nichola Pennesha, eleven and one half years old, of No. 95 North Margin street.

Lenzi and the boy were removed to the Relief Hospital.

The explosion circled an upcast in the crowded district, and police reserves were rushed to the scene. Probably due to an accumulation of sewer gas, the explosion sent the heavy metal cover hurtling thirty feet into the air.

BREAK WINDOWS; ARE GOOD LAWYERS

The "night before the 17th" and four small boys were too much for a number of store windows and street lamps in Roxbury. The four small boys also proved too much for Captain Gallivan's Roxbury Crossing constabulary, considering the fact that the youngsters argued themselves completely out of blame in the affair. Windows were broken at No. 756 Parker street, No. 970 Tremont street and No. 28 Longwood avenue. Street lamps were broken on Parker Hill.

The four boys were caught with their pockets loaded with rocks, parts of bricks, "boobies" and other missiles. But they will all make good lawyers.

20 DEAD IN STORM IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 17.—With twenty reported dead and damage estimated at more than a million dollars, South Dakota set to work today to establish communication with the area swept by storms. Wessington Springs is believed to have suffered most from the tornado which left hardly a store in the business district and made the streets there impassable. Hundreds of head of stock were killed and crops damaged.

Harvard Class Day Draws Brilliant Throng to Stadium, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

WHEN the confetti mist that hovered over the stadium like a rainbow cleared away, fair Harvard girls took their places with the brothers and friends and fiance for a last frolic through the lantern hung yards.

Lovely frocks, with confetti still clinging audaciously in their folds, the gay costumes of the men joining in class reunions, the seniors' black gowns met in a glory of color and contrast under the famous elms on Harvard class day today. The youthful hosts whose day was being celebrated, entertained at "spreads" in their rooms or under the trees.

In the evening the Glee Club was to gather on the steps of Widener.

THE cottage of the Howard Key Bartows on Atlantic avenue, Cohasset, is to be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Bacon for the summer while Mrs. Bacon's parents are traveling through France and England to visit Mrs. Bartow's mother and sister.

AMONG other notable weddings to take place at the end of the week will be the marriage of Miss Elimbeth Tyson Russell, daughter of the James Russells, to Charles Kimball Cummings, Jr. Miss Russell was presented in 1921-1922. She is a member of the Vincent Club and the Junior League. She recently returned from Europe.

TRAIN ROBBERS' LOOT BELIEVED BURIED

Chicago, June 17.—Police and postal inspectors are searching for a spot "somewhere between Chicago and Milwaukee" where they believe is buried the loot, valued at between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, obtained by bandits Thursday night in a holdup of a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul train. They are confident the money and securities taken from registered mail will be recovered within a few days.

Although city detectives believe the eight persons held by them are connected with the robbery, postal inspectors are skeptical and some say all the suspects are only beer runners.

SON ALIVE, MOTHER FREED OF 'MURDER'

Philadelphia, June 17 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Marie Scudera, taken into custody in connection with the finding of the body of a three-year-old boy in a suitcase here recently which had been identified as that of her son, was released today when she produced her son, alive and well. Mrs. Scudera's son was on a farm near Monmouth Junction, N. J., and after her arrest she sent a friend after the child.

WINDOW WASHER IS INJURED IN FALL

Frank Di Dio, forty-five, toppled ten feet from a ladder today while washing windows at No. 167 Federal street. He was treated at the Relief Hospital for lacerations to the left eye and right arm. His home is at No. 8 Oneida street, South End.

THESE BOYS BAR VAMPING, EVEN BY MOTHER

Lawrence and Gerald Griffin, whose address will be Woburn, are only five and four years old, but they don't allow every lady to make up to them, even at their age.

Even their own mother had to prove she was their mother before the young brothers, fresh from a three-and-a-half years sojourn in Ireland, would recognize her when the Cunard liner Scythia docked in New York.

The boys were left with their grandmother in Galway, Ire., a few years ago. But finally the mother, Mrs. John Griffin of Woburn, sent for them.

When she held out her arms to Lawrence and Gerald on the boat, however, they registered extreme terror. Only a shower of nickles and pennies, much peppermint candy and a lavish outlay of soothing explanation made them see the light. Then they started back for Woburn.

U. S. SAILOR TO WED GIRL WHO FREED HIM

Miss Helen Neagle of Dorchester, whose personal appeal to the Secretary of the Navy effected the release of Paul J. Kearns, her sweetheart, from the brig at Charlestown Navy Yard, is going to get her reward next Sunday when she becomes the bride of the youth, who recently inherited a $30,000 fortune from his foster parents.

The couple have long filed wedding intentions at City Hall. Kearns will not become of age until Sunday and had to secure the consent of his guardian, Demeron L. Dean, Jr., of Dorchester.

The girl's mother, Mrs. David H. Neagle, who was at first opposed to the union because of the girl's youth—she is only eighteen—has withdrawn her objections.

In the intentions Kearns gave his address as No. 25 Sargent street, Roxbury, which is also the home of his bride-to-be and her parents.

Annual June Clearance Sale

Begins Wednesday, June 18

9 A. M.

Merchandise offered in these Sales is always of the standard established for the goods in our regular stock. In fact the larger part of it is our regular stock. That part which is represented by special lots of new goods bought at less than regular prices and offered at corresponding discounts may be relied upon just as thoroughly as any goods we sell. Knowledge of these facts, we believe, accounts for the tremendous response that always comes to these Sales.

Our Clearance Sales are supplied from two sources:

FIRST: Broken assortments and end-of-the-season accumulations in our regular stock—in no sense undesirable—marked at prices to effect quick sale.

SECOND: Special end-of-the-season lots of new goods bought at low prices and offered accordingly.

Our customers have learned to rely upon the quality of both classes of merchandise.

WOMAN FLAYS 'POLS' FOR DRY LAW EVASION

Chief of Enforcement Bureau Says Agents Hampered by Influential "Higher-Ups"

Washington, June 17.—As the chief official of the Department of Justice charged with enforcement of prohibition, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General, submitted a defence of the law's administration today before the Senate Daugherty investigating committee.

On several occasions she told Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, the committee "prosecutor," to "wait a minute," when he sought to intervene in her testimony. Senator Wheeler finally broke in.

"Oh, I know that this whiskey business is continually kicked around between the prohibition unit and the Department of Justice," he said, "but the Department of Justice has responsibility which it cannot evade and has a $2,000,000 annual appropriation for detecting crime."

Taking issue with Senator Wheeler, who insisted that the main trouble with prohibition enforcement was a shifting of responsibility on the part of officials, Mrs. Willebrandt contended that political control over agents was the most serious factor.

"The real trouble," she declared, "is not passing the buck, but the influence of politicians through some Senator or Congressman in aiding or blocking an agent's appointment."

Mrs. Willebrandt said three months' training should be given an agent before he is placed in the field. She defended agents of the Department of Justice, contending they lacked funds and numbers to cope with all cases of law violation.

LONDON HALES 5 RODEO COWBOYS TO COURT

Cruelty to Animals Society Moves to Stop Roundup as Annual Event

London, June 17.—Five court summonses were issued today against Tex Austin and other promoters of the Rodeo in the Wembly Stadium and cowboys participating in it, charging cruelty to animals in the steer roping contest.

One of the summonses is returnable against a cowboy in the roping contest which resulted in a steer breaking its leg. Agents of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals urged the magistrate to try the case immediately so the Rodeo might be stopped, but the hearing was set for June 27, three days before the contest ends.

The agents afterward said they were satisfied, as they were mainly concerned in preventing the Rodeo from becoming an annual event in England.

In yesterday's Rodeo performance a cowgirl, Anita Studernick, was thrown while riding a bronco and broke her collarbone, and one steer was shot after its horn was torn off in the meshed fencing around the arena.

The steer roping contests are being carried on in the stadium behind locked doors with only London policemen as spectators. About 100,000 persons saw the other rodeo events and cheered the daring of the cowboys and cowgirls. Newspaper accounts say the crowds ejected one spectator who booed the performance.

FROM PERSONAL EXPERIENCE

Mrs. Bradford Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Phoebus, Virginia.—"Having this opportunity I just cannot refrain from saying a word of praise for the Lydia E. Pinkham medicines. I have used them as occasion required for twenty years, and my three sisters have also used them, and always with the most gratifying results. During the Change of Life I had the usual distressing symptoms,—hot flashes, insomnia, etc.,—and I am pleased to testify to the wonderful results I obtained from the Vegetable Compound. I heartily recommend it to any woman and I will be pleased to answer any inquiries that might be sent to me through the publication of my testimonial."—Mrs. H. L. BRADFORD, 109 Armistead St., Phoebus, Va.

Consider carefully Mrs. Bradford's letter. Her experience ought to help you. She mentions the trials of middle age and the wonderful results she obtained from Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you are suffering from nervous troubles, irritability, or if other annoying symptoms appear and you are blue at times, you should give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Herriot Smokes Pipe, Eats Sauerkraut; "Lacks Dignity"

Paris, June 17.—The new Premier, Edouard Herriot, is taken to task by the Echo de Paris as lacking in dignity. As his first offense, the paper cites his act in supplying the press after the May parliamentary elections with a photograph showing him smoking a pipe.

The second offense charged against M. Herriot is that, after working until 11 o'clock at night in forming his Cabinet, he carried off those present to a brasserie near the Bastille, to partake of a sauerkraut supper.

MISSING GIRL IS HOME AGAIN AS 'BRIDE'

Grace Eason, Phone Operator, Says She Married N. Y. "Prizefighter"

Who is John J. Casey?

When Grace E. Eason, Back Bay telephone operator, reappeared on the eve of what was to have been her wedding day, after a mysterious absence of more than two weeks, she announced that her marriage to "Phantom Phil" Shaughnessy was all off.

"I'm the wife of John J. Casey, prizefighter," the girl announced.

"Who is John J. Casey," the girl was asked?

"John J. Casey—why he's a prizefighter from New York, poor but honest, who is known in fighting circles as "Phil Shaughnessy," she replied.

Throughout her shifting stories, Miss Eason maintains that Casey is the "phantom Phil" whom she told her girl friends months ago she was to marry.

"I've been to New York on a little trip," she said. "I'm already married and my husband is John J. Casey, known in the prize-fighting ring as "Philly Shaughnessy." We were married in New York by a justice of the peace last August 8. That's all there is to it."

STORIES CONFLICT.

The girl whose disappearance on the eve of her "wedding" caused a country-wide search for her, told many conflicting stories when she returned to her room at No. 17 Ivy street, Back Bay.

Then, without explanation of her change of heart, she suddenly announced that she wanted to "tell it all."

"My husband is poor. He is a prize fighter and his home is in New York. His people are Catholics. His real name is John J. Casey but in the ring he is known as Phil Shaughnessy. I only knew him a short time before we were married. After we were married I decided that I had better join his church—the Catholic church, so I went and took instructions.

"He is poor but a mighty nice fellow. We decided that we would be remarried by a priest and that is the wedding that was set for today. I went down to New York several weeks ago. Certainly I was with my husband. Now all this publicity has come about and we're not going to be remarried at this time. Some time later when people have forgotten about us, we will be remarried."

The general description of the "Phantom Phil" as given by the girl to her friends fits accurately the description of a young man recently sent to State's Prison for a three year term for burglary.

"Did you ever know this convict?" the girl was asked.

The girl laughed.

"Would I be laughing if I knew him?" she countered.

Twelve hours before the missing telephone operator returned to her room in the Back Bay, another man of mystery called the girl's landlady, Mrs. Margaret Smith.

"Don't move any of Miss Eason's clothing from her room. She'll be back within a short time," the steamer telephoned.

"Who telephoned to Mrs. Smith?" the young woman was asked.

"Oh, that was Phil—my husband," she declared.

A moment before she had insisted that she and "Phantom Phil" were together in New York until she returned to Boston.

Meantime, Sydney Pearce, former fiance of the telephone operator, insists that he knows nothing of her love affairs.

GRACE E. EASON

Back Bay telephone operator, who vanished mysteriously after announcing she was to marry "Phantom Phil" Shaughnessy and who has returned to her apartment announcing in various stories that she has been married several months to one John Casey, a New York prizefighter, whose ring name she says is "Phil" Shaughnessy. Photo shows her as she returned and posed for the Boston American photographer.

11 BALLOONS IN BENNETT CUP RACE LAND

Brussels, June 17 (A.P.)—Of the 17 balloons that started Sunday in the fourteenth renewal of the Gordon Bennett cup race, ten have already landed without breaking any previous records, and, up to this afternoon, seven were still in the air or had not been heard from by the Belgian Aero Club here.

The wind landings reported were the Ville de Bruxelles (Belgium) at Saint Genoul in the Avane; Ville Bordeaux (French), near Brighton, England, the longest distance so far reported; Captain (Spanish) at Famechon, the Somme; Aerostier (Italian), at Novel-Surdicin, in the Seine-et-Marne; Prince Leopold (Belgian), at Leffinghe, near Ostend, and the Picardie (French), at Bray, northeast of Paris.

The balloons which landed yesterday were the Champion (France), the American entry, Uncle Sam; Banshee (British), and the Margaret (British).

CANADIAN POSTMEN THREATEN STRIKE

Toronto, June 17.—A seventy-four hour ultimatum, with a strike threat attached, has been sent to the Federal government and Parliament, executives of the Canadian federation of postal employes. The ultimatum, in the form of a resolution, called upon Parliament in Ottawa to amend the postal laws so that the government itself would be able to deal with the demands of the postal employes.

The postal workers have refused to accept the wage award made by the Civil Service Commission and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King has informed the House of Commons that the government is powerless to interfere unless the law be amended.

E. D. HOWE, GRANGE EX-LEADER, DEAD

SECOND CHOICE DEMOCRATS LOOM UP

Convention Leaders See Unbreakable McAdoo-Smith-Underwood Deadlock

New York, June 17. (I.N.S.)—The Democratic National Convention that meets in Madison Square Garden one week from today will be a battle of the second choices if the talk among the leaders now here can be accepted as an accurate indication of what the average Democratic mind is thinking.

While public discussion of candidates and their chances naturally revolves about the trio presented by McAdoo-Smith-Underwood, it is of second choices that the leaders speak when the discussion gets down to the private stage.

The plain and unvarnished reason therefore is that comparatively few of the leaders believe that either McAdoo, Smith or Underwood can be nominated.

This belief in the destiny of a second choice—it amounts almost to conviction on the part of many shrewd party prophets—constitutes the sole stock in hope of the Ralston managers, the John W. Davis Hoosiers, the Glass People, the Cummings crowd, the Copeland Forces, everyone, in fact whose name has been drawn into this Democratic melting pot.

McAdoo's managers, and Smith's managers, are apprehensively cognizant of this situation.

It is responsible for the revival of the quadrennial discussion about abrogating the two-thirds nominating rule. The effort of the McAdoo people to force a rule through the rules committee abolishing the two-thirds law will be savagely opposed by not only the Smith contingent but also by the adherents of all the dark horses. The two-thirds rule is one of their chief assets, and they will not lose it lightly.

464 Women Democrats at Convention as Delegates

Washington, June 17.—At least 464 women will attend the Democratic National Convention as delegates or alternates.

Of this number 143 will sit as delegates at large, thirty-four as district delegates, seventy as alternates at large and 209 as district alternates. These figures do not include all of the women delegates and alternates from Virginia, nor any from Alabama.

20 DROWN AS NORSE MAIL SHIP SINKS

Christiania, Norway, June 17 (A.P.)—Twenty persons, mostly women and children, were drowned when the Norwegian mail steamer Haakon Jarl sank after a collision with the steamer Kong Harald. The collision occurred in the Vestfjord, between the Lofoten Islands and the Norwegian mainland.

SCORES EXECUTED IN RUSSIA AS SPIES

Moscow, June 17 (AP.)—The Soviet Russian authorities are dealing drastically with civilians and former officers in the Red and Imperial armies convicted as spies.

During the last three months several scores of persons have been executed for espionage, and twelve additional death sentences were pronounced last Sunday.

Of those newly condemned are Commander Meodoushevsky, chief of the administrative department of the Red army division; Commander Zelinsky of the Red army cavalry school; Commander Maximoff of the Red navy and Commander Ossovsky, formerly of the Imperial army.

Port Newark Army Supply Base FOR LEASE

The leading of the Army Supply Base offers an exceptional opportunity to obtain one of the most ideally situated and best equipped freight terminals in the country. Built during the war with all the engineering ability and resources that the government could command, nothing was spared to make this a most efficient and scientific transportation terminal.

This plant, together with the equipment thereon, is to be leased in its entirety for a term of 10 years. Sealed proposals will be received in the office of the Quartermaster General, room 2018, Munitions Building, Washington, D. C., until

AUGUST 1, 1924, 11:00 A. M., STANDARD TIME

Location: Comprising 118 acres of land, located on Newark Bay, between the 8th Channel, right of way of Central Railroad of New Jersey and Port Street. Streets leading to the Base from Newark City proper are well paved, capable of bearing very heavy traffic. The Terminal is right miles from New York City by water and slightly more than half that distance by truck.

Warehouses: There are nine warehouses and two covered sheds, one of the latter 1,000 feet long, giving a total storage space of 1,000,000 square feet. The warehouses, consisting of 60 units, divided by fire walls into equal portions, each section equipped with an improved fire extinguishing system, fire alarm system, electric light and transmission power circuits. Floor capacity for 100 pounds per sq. ft., live load. Along the entire length of each warehouse on either side are 18 ft. receiving and loading platforms. Those front on the Base have a 10 ft. dock side and in a 70 ft. paved roadway on either side of each warehouse.

Rail Facilities: The Base is connected directly with the Pennsylvania and Central Railroad systems. The Pennsylvania Railroad property is also maintained switching connections with about half a dozen other railway systems, arriving at, tidewater. The total mileage of yard and siding track is 14.7 miles, with a capacity of 732 cars.

Water Transportation Facilities: On the water side the Base is reached by means of a 70 ft. channel from the upper Bay of New York. Paralleling the channel in front of the Base, there is a 30 ft. channel, with a 10 ft. driveway along the north side, for the full length of the reservation, a distance of 2,250 ft. Standard gauge track runs along part of this dock.

Improvements: Barracks and quarters, stores and shops, warehouses and dock, administration building, boiling plant, fire station, pumping plant, miscellaneous sheds, electric storm radio station, battery charging plants, etc.), water and sewer systems, railroads trackage, roads, walks and fencing.

To addition to the above plant, there is to be offered for leasing for a term of 10 years a tract of 18 acres adjoining the Army Supply Base on the East, which is now occupied by the plant of the Submarine Boat Corporation and leased to the United States Shipping Board, expiring March 1, 1925. Notice of the intention to now on the property included in this lease.

Those in any way interested in either or both projects should make it their business to investigate them immediately to more fully appreciate the many advantages and opportunities offered. Write at once for terms and specifications under which these projects are to be leased, to

SIGNALS PASS THROUGH BIG STATIC BELT

North and South American "Homes" Communicate, but Central America Dead

Radio signals that cannot be heard in point to point communication in a section where there is a great deal of static, pass through the disturbed area with great ease and are picked up by outside stations without any trouble.

Radio men, especially ship operators, have known this for many years, but it has seldom been demonstrated on so large a scale as it was during the Pan-American amateur radio tests of the American Radio Relay League and the Revista Telegrafica.

While amateurs in North and South America could hear each other transmitting, operators in the Central American countries had great difficulty hearing either continent.

During these Latin-American amateur tests signals passed through the worst static belt in the world, apparently, without losing any of their strength or readability. Braggier's signals were heard equally well in North America, New Zealand and Europe.

Nearly a dozen United States amateurs heard his call. The operator of Canadian station IBQ reports reception of Braggio's signals, while the latter cabled that he had copied at least fifty calls of North American amateurs. From now on it is predicted South Americans will be active in international amateur radio.

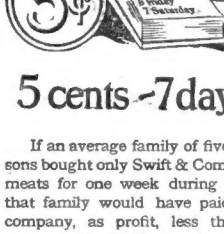
HOWL HELPS TO LEARN THE CODE

The fans who wish to practice code, if he is the owner of a set which can produce an audio-frequency howl, has a wonderful means of learning it. Disconnect the antenna from the set to prevent radiation of energy. Connect an ordinary key in series with the B battery circuit and close the key. Make the set howl by manipulating the dials, and then open the key. The howl will cease. By pressing the key the howl will again be present. The code may then be practiced, varying the note of the signal to please the ear. Do not connect the antenna to the set while doing this or the set will radiate.



5 cents -7 days

If an average family of five persons bought only Swift & Company meats for one week during 1923, that family would have paid the company, as profit, less than 5 cents on the week's supply.

These figures are developed by considering U. S. Government statistics on meat consumption in relation to Swift & Company's profit.

By the intelligent use of capital, Swift & Company prepares meats in a modern, sanitary, scientifically-clean manner.

By intensive organization, Swift & Company distributes every variety of meat, under complete refrigeration, to retail markets of great cities and small hamlets—wherever they may be located.

It is only through the most efficient methods that a company can supply the meat requirements of a family of five persons, anywhere in this country, for a period of seven days, at a profit of only 5 cents.

Swift & Company's profit from all sources in 1923 averaged only a fraction of a cent per pound on all products sold.

CONVENTION IS ARRANGED FOR RADIO FANS

New York, June 17.—As a concession to radio devotees whose duties keep them away from their headsets during the daytime, the National Democratic Committee has determined to postpone the speech of the temporary chairman, usually delivered at an afternoon session, until the first night of the convention.

All arrangements have been made to insure the best possible transmission.

For those who intend coming to New York for the convention, whether delegates or visitors, arrangements also have been practically completed, including dancing lessons.

The entertainment schedule, which ranges from afternoon teas to theatre parties, will have its official start on Saturday with a tea to the National Committeewomen by Miss Elizabeth Marbury.

On the Air Last Night

By THE LISTENER.

I hear that WNAC will broadcast the Democratic convention from New York next week. From the number of letters that poured into WNAC and WTAT on the Republican convention broadcast, this proved to be mighty popular.

The cost of wires for these broadcasts is rather high. It takes three of them—one regular, one emergency and a telegraph ticker wire for special announcements. The regular wire has to be specially balanced with a terrifying lot of large condensers and inductances, and many skilled engineers are constantly engaged to see that the line does not get noisy.

At the same time, KDKA, down in East Pittsburgh, is transmitting exactly the same thing on 100 meters for rebroadcasting by WBZ and KFKX, Hastings, Neb., and possibly England. There seems no reason why any other station in the country could not avoid payment for the special wire by broadcasting on a 100-meter stuff. The Western Electric Company and the American Telephone Company would not be especially pleased, however.

The difference in quality between the wire line and the broadcast is, however, noticeable. The rebroadcasting picks up two layers of static—that on 100 meters as well as on the rebroadcast wave. It is no less reliable than the wire connection.

Everett is coming on the air next Thursday. A program by the Chamber of Commerce of that city will be broadcast through WNAC.

Tonight WJY in New York comes across with the first of a widely heralded new style of broadcast program. This is "A Night With the Conquistadores." Having dug out the dog-eared dictionary, we are prepared to state authoritatively that the Conquistadores were the Spanish conquerors of Mexico and Peru about the sixteenth century. Evidently WJY is planning to begin a long way back.

Roslindale, West Roxbury and that general neighborhood get another chance to hear the new portable station tonight. WCBR, it's down on WTAT's old wavelength.

COUNTERPOISE WAS CHANCE DISCOVERY

The history of the counterpoise goes back to the early experiments of Sir Oliver Lodge to determine why two similarly constructed stations were operated with widely different degrees of efficiency simply because of their location.

Based on a theory that the ground resistance, in the case of a station located on rocky terrain or dry sand, was responsible for the loss in range, Lodge designed an artificial ground which he called a counterpoise, made up of a net of insulated wires suspended on poles a few feet above the earth and under the aerial. When the transmitter was switched from the old ground to the new the aerial ammeter showed a much higher reading, proving the theory to be sound.

The system found worldwide application, and it is in use today in most broadcasting stations. It may be employed for receiving purposes as well where good ground connections are unavailable.

GRID BALANCE BATTERIES AN IMPROVEMENT

Used With Resistence Coupled Audio Amplifier to Minimize Distortion

The replacing of condensers in the usual resistence coupled audio-frequency amplifier with grid balancing batteries is regarded by experts as an improvement.

Although the resistence coupled amplifier gives quite less distortion than the transformer coupled, the presence of the grid condensers is bound to cause some distortion.

Voice and music are composed of frequencies as low as 60 cycles per second and as high as 10,000 cycles. The high frequencies are passed much more readily through the condensers than are the low frequencies, which means an over-emphasizing of the high tones.

If the condensers are replaced with batteries which balance out the plate voltage, the amplifier will take all frequencies alike.

If the main plate battery is 100 volts, these balancing batteries should be about 50 volts. They should be variable, but as practically no current is drawn from them, they may be very small in size.

A milliameter connected as shown in the diagram is a great help with this amplifier. The correct working current is about ten milliamperes, although this varies with different tubes.

The same plan may be used for radio frequency amplification except at very short waves.

Radio Queries

Four of us built American Supers. For local stations we get full loudspeaker volume and the quality is wonderful, but we cannot get over 600 miles. W. R. R., Providence, R. I.

You have used good parts in the R. F. stage, this is probably a result of the time of year. Next Fall may show a change on the distance end.

We have an American Super on which I have logged 55 stations on a loud speaker, including Neb., farthest west and Cuba farthest south. We have had a lot of static lately, but we get, except that on the lower wavelengths the set will "howl" when we turn and then whistle. I recently read about the diamond wave coils and would be glad to substitute them if you think they are more efficient. A. J. S., Worcester, Mass.

Either the angle of the coils is incorrect, or you have feed back through parallel leads. Diamond wave coils would probably fix you up.

I have built a two-tube Superhet with 199 tubes, but get weak work on crystal, and I get only WBZ, E. K. Mears—Might be high resistance crystal. Either put in a new crystal, or add two turns to primary of second unit, or both.

Some time ago I completed a 4-tube Super and in spite of unfavorable weather conditions have been obtaining very good results with it. Recently, however, you had a new set that showed better using heavier aerial. My condensers are developing a bad wandering play in the shafts as they are building set over. G. A. G., Diamond Grove or spiderweb coils in the Super are easier to mount, and often give better results. The disadvantage of the Superflex is the fewer number of tubes used and its portability.

I have just finished setting up a two-tube ——— set, and have got nothing but howls. 1—Where can I look for the trouble? 2—What issues of the American Boy have the dope on radio and selling the coils of the Superflex?

1—This is hard to tell without more data. A poor crystal is often the cause. Probably you would get better results on a Superflex. 2—May 7 and 8.

I have a three-tube set that gives loud signals on the phones, but with the same antenna and ground it is louder than the phones lying on the table. Is it possible to get a loud speaker that will serve without a power amplifier?

The loud speaker you mention is made by a reliable manufacturer, and there is no reason why, if you get good volume on the phones, you should not do so on the loud speaker. It is probably defective, and I advise you to start turning it to the dealer. No loud speaker on the market is up to par, with the exception of the power Reid and like the Magnavox, that has an amperage from the storage battery.

I have built a four-tube Super according to instructions in a book. Since building it, I have been informed there was an unavoidable error in the diagrams. P. H. G., Pittsburgh, Pa.

There is no error in any of the diagrams in the Super booklet, as these were carefully checked several times.

Can you tell me what causes a terrible howl in my phones when I advance the rotor of the tuning inductance in the crystal hookup? W. E. M.

This is an oscillation howl, and incidentally disturbs your neighbors. If you cannot tune in the station that you hear the howl, the signals are not strong enough to be received on your set. If you are careful in tuning to keep below the howl, and to drop below it as the variometer, if it should start, you will not interfere badly.

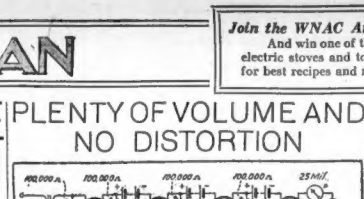
GOOD HOLIDAY BILL AT KEITH'S

Blossom Seeley, queen of syncopation, is the headliner in a clever holiday bill at Keith's this week. She is accompanied by the versatile Benie Fields, the well known song delineator, and a talented company of a headline calibre. Miss Seeley is billed as "The Girl Who Glorified Syncopation," and she certainly lives up to the name.

Gordon Dooley and Martha Morton are two more who contribute to help make this a delightful attractive. These two famous artists, children of two famous families, make up one of the cleverest teams on the circuit. Their offering is worthy of praise.

Lulu McConnell and Company kept the audience in an uproar from start to finish. They call their act, "At Home." Billy Glason has an act which pleased the audience. Burr and Hops in a comedy romance. Ann Gray with her harp, Robbie Gordone, and the, Zelina sisters in an aerial act, complete the bill.

PLENTY OF VOLUME AND NO DISTORTION



FOUR-TUBE AMPLIFIER

The amplifier shown above will amplify signals from a local station rectified by a crystal detector sufficiently to fill a large concert hall. If a tube detector is used, the transformer may be omitted and the resistance used instead. The grid batteries work wonders in this, and although 45 volts are needed, there is no drain on them.

MYSTERY FILM PLEASES AT FENWAY

The first presentation of "The Bedroom Window," by Clara Beranger, was given at the Fenway Theatre yesterday. The picture, one of mystery and thrills, delighted large houses all afternoon and evening. It is one of the most satisfying productions ever given in this city.

May McAvoy, whose beauty films so satisfactorily, has a star part in the picture. She is pictured in stunning wraps and stylish gowns. Ethel Wales, as Matilda Jones, alias Rufus Rome, author of detective stories, and Robert Edeson, as the diabolical villain, something different from the characters assumed when he was such a footlight favorite in this city, had the leading parts.

Malcolm MacGregor, as Frank Armstrong, and Ricardo Cortz, as Robert Delano, rivals for Ruth Martin, the part portrayed by May McAvoy, and Medea Radzina, as Sonya Malisoff, a Russian adventuress, presumably, also had strong parts.

The mystery play is worthy of a Gaboriau or an Edgar Allen Poe, and holds attention. There is a little touch of comedy here and there and a lot of human nature is interwoven.

The Fenway has a fine bill and "Tootale Wootale," the comedy by Neal Burns and Vera Steadman, is a scream. The women enjoy the picture hugely, for the company includes the cunningest baby ever shown on the film.

The Fenway bill included a concert by the Fenway Theatre Ushers' Jazz Band, with four ushers and a page. Maxine Hughes, the program girl, sang and danced and Usher Stanley sang.

"The Bedroom Window" is presented by Adolph Zukor and Jesse Lasky and is a Paramount picture.

"Hot Feet," with "The White Panther."

CHICKIE

The Beautiful, but Bluntly Honest Story of a Boston Girl

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

LIKE this one: "I dropped in on Christmas Day to see your mother, Chickie. She did nothing but talk of you and the wonderful job you had received—the big future and the big salary.

"It's pathetic. She was talking her heart into the words. Well—the $200 may be a good salary, but you're not the only one paying for it, Chickie. I think it's just cruel to your parents, if you're going to be down there much longer you better stop and think.

"I suppose I should mind my own business, but Jennie is looking very old and thin. She knows her age and she never did before.

"Jonathan didn't say a word the whole time I was there. He just chewed his cigar. Finally he asked me to come in for a while at dinner. We were eating at four so I could. It was the saddest thing in the world to see those two sitting there alone making a show of Christmas spirit with your place all decorated in holly, and Jennie wiping her eyes all the time. I don't know how you can do it, Chickie. It's selfish and nothing else when you know their whole life is centered in you."

And in the next mail there came a message from her father: "Chickie girl, it was no Christmas without you. Jennie is getting too lonely. She's not so well. I hope you'll come very soon. That's all she needs to perk up again. Poor mother—she dreams about you every night and wakes me up, crying. Now that's all foolishness. I tell her—but just you hurry up, Chickie girl, or we'll come up and fetch you—"

She took these two letters and read them till terror like a poison filled her veins.

She sent no answers.

Time—she must fight for time. And now it seemed to her that her mind was paralyzed. When she tried to think it was numb—as if a frozen thing. She said to herself again and again—"Another month—another month."

Then she was wild with fear that there might be delays—that this date for the end of January that the doctor had given her might be mistaken. She herself felt that it would be a week, or maybe two, later than that.

She wondered how soon she could get up—how soon she could race down there—from where she would put the little thing for just a while—

After New Year's she wrote. She had just come back. Oh, the time would be a jiffy now till she was with them again. Oh, they were clearing up all the work here and the office would soon be ready in the city. She'd have to wait—they were working day and night. But in a few weeks she'd come flying in upon them. Wouldn't they make up for lost time, though, to please put everything aside now Chickie. Never mind about this job. Your mother is sick. She has been in bed almost since Christmas. She calls for you. I ask you to please put everything aside now and come."

Chickie took her father's letter and hid it under her pillow. When she slept, she dreamed of her mother. She saw her lying with half-closed eyes, the faded hair across her forehead. Jennie called and called: "Chickie—here? Tell Chickie to come."

Those soft, gentle cries stabbed into her heart. They left a wound that spread. Each day it spread; it ate in frightful pain upon her.

But she let the time pass ignoring Jonathan's plea. After four days she wrote:

"What do you mean the two of you, deserting your only darling. Almost ten days of the new year gone and I haven't heard one blessed word from either of you. Oh, you're not angry with me, are you? I wrote you after Christmas when I thought I was home for good, but they bounced me off again without a moment's notice and I've been all through the wilderness of Northern New England and couldn't get a word to you. Now I'm jaunting over the ruts and boulders of Vermont's famous roads. Only the Lord himself could gouge such fancy twists. And the people—rustic—well, like a different race! I may write a book of my deep and delicious experience and make you both famous, dear darlings—

"In two or three weeks I'll be completely finished. Then home! And Gulliver himself and all his travels will never lure me off again, I'm telling you—

"Now—write and write—or else I will go into exile and you'll never see the sweet face of Lucy Gray no more!"

These letters killed her spirits; they brought to death the sweetness in her. Oh—she wouldn't write another—not a single other! Let it happen—anything that would! Oh—she might as well take a hammer, pound out their trusting hearts.

Agnes Robbins noticed her red eyes. She made Chickie come into the kitchen where it was warm. They sat at a table near the window. Agnes poured coffee and stared at the ordinary, level acres. The wind swept dead leaves upward; and the leaves made little forlorn rushes and dropped along the ground. Agnes shivered: 'What a God-forsaken place this is in winter! "Merle"—this was the name Chickie had given herself—"Dearie—what makes you want to stay up here?

"I don't feel equal to moving. I like you, Agnes Robbins. And with my folks all in Boston—it's better here than anywhere else could be—"

"Oh, dear! It gets me in the winter. I want to be away. I wish the place was sold. I can't stand this monotony. When I was young like you, Merle, the heavens couldn't chain me."

"Oh — some things could, I guess!"

"We must make the arrangements. You haven't much longer."

"They're all made. Didn't I tell you?"

"No—you'll go down into town, will you?"

Chickie nodded. But this was not the truth. She had been deliberately vague with Agnes Robbins as to the date, setting it later than the time the doctor had named.

She did this because she was stubborn and determined to remain on the farm. She was afraid to be sent from it. In the town was a hospital. The doctor had come from the city. His nurses were all brought from Boston. Chickie had trembled during the whole time she talked to him, fearing a door might open and someone she knew would appear. Oh—she'd run into the fields before she'd take such a chance now!

Then Jonathan wrote again "Well, we didn't know what to make of it, Chickie girl, when you didn't come and didn't write. And your mother cried by the hour and that's not good for her. She's not a bit well though I don't want to frighten you. I've had the doctor and he thinks it's a touch of pneumonia and her heart's none so strong. Please ask them to give you a little time off, Chickie girl, and run down here to see us. Jennie is in bed and I can lift her now like a baby. She's gotten thin, Chickie, your old Dad would find it mighty sweet to have you here in these night times—and sitting by the bed. What shall I tell your mother—that you're coming as soon as the train will take you? Write at once—"

This, too, went under the pillow. Chickie knelt at the bed, her face buried in her arms. And she cried. And she thought that God was hard to her.

Doubly hard. Because Jonathan had sent another letter, enclosing it with his. It was from Larry Dunne. He sent her money. He wrote this:

"I know you don't wish to hear from me. I don't send this to you. But the time must be about over. And the thought that it should suffer no matter what is done now but you haven't the right, because of contempt for me, to make it any harder for it. I will send more regularly if you let me know."

No name signed—no greeting given. If anything on the green, sad earth could make her feel more alone, more desolate, it was that line from him she had so loved—

She took a plain envelope and put the bills—$250—in this and sealed it. Then she put it in her trunk and trembled. The child was his—his too—the pain all hers—

She walked into the room, holding his letter in her hand, feeling it like a scalding in her mind. Suddenly she laughed. Ho—free—she had been free—ever so free. She had been glad—oh, joyous days on a river—oh, happy, long hours under a tree. And she had laughed—daring life to corner her!

Life had taken her dare. But not Janina's—not Amy Heaton's—not even Marjorie Abbott's.

But if they could eat their fruit as she was eating hers. Oh, if they could taste the ashen bitterness. She stopped, exhausted.

Jonathan's letter remained unanswered two days. Then came another. Swift, commanding, frantic in its prayer:

"Chickie, girl, come now! Jennie is sinking. Leave everything and come. Your mother is out of her mind, calling for you. She's taken this sudden turn. Pray God to help us. I don't know what to do or what to say to her. Send me a telegram. Don't waste a moment."

And Chickie, shaken from head to foot, crept up the stairs to her room. She closed the door, locked it.

MARTHA LEE GIVES CANNING RULES

By MARTHA LEE

CANNING ASPARAGUS

ASPARAGUS is one of the earliest of our native vegetables to come into production. It is a very valuable asset to the diet, as well as being an extremely delightful food. It should be used as freely as a fresh vegetable, and a supply should be canned for later use.

It may be canned as "stalk" or cut. It is good practice to combine these two results, using the buds or tops and part of the stalk to give the "stalk" canned product, and the lower parts of the stalk, so far as tender, to provide the "cut" product.

In canning "stalk" asparagus. Be sure the vegetable is absolutely fresh. It is useless to can any vegetable that has started to wilt.

Thoroughly wash the asparagus, trim off the larger scales and the tough, inedible portion at the bottom of the stalks. Tie into bunches a little larger than the outside diameter of the jar to be used. Cut the bottom end off the bunches so that the stalks are so long as the jar is deep inside. Prepare only enough for six jars at one time.

Stand these bunches in boiling water so that they are two thirds under water and leave them there for two minutes, if the kettle is large enough and the fire hot enough so that the water does not stop boiling. If the water ceases to boil when the bunches go in, leave them in the kettle for one or two minutes after boiling begins again, depending on how long it takes to boil again. Next, tip the bunches over so that they are fully submerged and leave them in the boiling water for two minutes. This operation is called "blanching" and is done to shrink the vegetable and to soften certain flavors.

At the end of this blanching period remove them from the kettle and plunge into cool water. This is called "cold dipping" and is for the purpose of washing off certain flavors and cooking the product so that it can be handled.

Pack the jars, keeping the stalks bud-end up, except for four or five in the middle, which are put in bud-end down so that a fork may be run into them and they will soon come out without breaking.

Add ½ tsp. of salt to each pint jar and fill to within ¼ inch of the top with hot water.

Test the rubbers, dip them in hot water and put on each jar, being careful that the shoulders of the jars are clean. Put on the covers and "partly seal." If Lightning type jars are used, this means putting the wires over the tops and leaving the side clamp "up." If Mason type jars are used tighten the covers and then release ¼ turn.

Put the jars into a boiler of warm water deep enough to cover the jars when all are in. Put a cover on the boiler.

Bring the water to the boiling point and keep it boiling vigorously for 1 hour and 40 minutes. If the cover fits quite tightly, it will be unnecessary to look in the boiler again. It is good practice to set the alarm clock to ring when the time is up. At the end of this period called the "processing period," remove the jars from the boiler and complete the seal. With Lightning type jars, this means push down the side clamp. With Mason jars, again tighten the cover.

Put the jars aside to cool. If a newspaper or cloth is spread over them it will protect them from stray drafts of air that might cool them too quickly and cause breakage. When thoroughly cool, store in a dry, cool place.

Canning "cut" asparagus. Wash and trip off the large scales. Cut lengthwise to ¾ inch pieces. Put the buds and upper cuts into one utensil and the center and lower cuts into another. Blanch the buds and upper cuts for two minutes in boiling water, or longer, if water does not boil. Blanch the other portion for four minutes. Cold dip. Pack the jars by shaking down and pressing without crushing, until they are filled to within ¼ inch of the top. Add hot water and salt as in "stalk" recipe. Put on rubbers, covers and partly seal the jars. Process for one hour and forty minutes. At the end of the processing period, remove the jars from the boiler, complete the seal, cool and store.

One dozen bunches—twelve pounds—of asparagus should give seven jars of "stalk" and two jars of "cut," if both are taken from same asparagus. If all is "cut" it should give ten jars.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

Ann Lisle

"EXPORTING and importing," I said innocently. "The Yelda Importing Company does its publicity and advertising through my office. Perhaps you have met young Rockhill and Wayne Parkinson, 3d. Mr. Ortiz. If not, and you'd care about the Introduction. I'll be glad to see that you meet them. I've an idea that the acquaintance might mean something to you."

"It is not with the stockings and the lingerie Manuelo Ortiz shall deal," Ramon informed me with amused scorn. "It is the coal and the wood and the steel he shall make his boats to carry from your Estados Unidos. And when it is from us the ships they sail, the hides and the grains shall come. Large are the cargoes. Much is the money. My Rosa, she understand, but most women shall think like you do that it is some profits for carry maybe a hundred pairs silk stockings."

When Ramon finished he looked at Ross triumphantly, as if to ask if she didn't think him clever to put me in my place so nicely. He plumed himself on his loyalty in giving me to understand that Rosa wouldn't make the same stupid blunder I had just made. But Rosa was scowling. Convinced that she didn't think me the uninformed and stupid little goose Ramon was ready to call me, I acknowledged:

"I'm sure I haven't the knowledge of the shipping world that a thorough business woman like Rosa has. But I didn't think the Yelda Company was the game Mr. Ortiz was after. I merely thought Wayne Parkinson 3d and Howard Rockhill might be men of the caliber he'd like to meet. And I suppose sometimes boats carried mixed cargoes."

I smiled at Ramon with an expression I meant to have conveyed both gratitude and explanation. But Rosa, as if loath to have us come to any sort of understanding, broke in testily:

"Manuelo, he is as he say, new to it all. It is nice for you to be making the suggestion, Anna. I think nothing can be kinder than that you shall tell him what it is you learn from the advertising. Maybe now since you have in this shipping corporation so many interests you can make Nello the acquaintance with more important persons than the young Park. How is it you do not think right away of that? Me, I am surprised you shall wait for me to tell you how best you can serve—"

Rosa broke off and smiled at me impishly. Like a flash I realized that Rosa was anxious for me to show my hand. I could see that her inviting me to her apartment to meet Nello was done with a purpose.

Peter Stanley snubbed Rosa and Ramon the night I had them meet. Rosa glossed it over then for her own pride's sake. But she'd never give him another chance to belittle her in her own eyes or the eyes of anyone else.

FIVE MEN HELD ON AUTO THEFT CHARGE

Charged with stealing an automobile in the Back Bay June 12, Francis J. Cronin, Joseph Lowder, Martin Donovan, William May and Paul T. Donovan appeared in Roxbury Court today.

The men were arrested in Billerica after it was found they had changed number plates on an automobile they were riding in. It was said to have been the property of Julius Goldstein, No. 11 McLellan street, Dorchester. They pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued to June 27. In the same court Charles Moore of Westland avenue, Back Bay, pleaded not guilty to attempting to steal a tire from an automobile on Westland avenue. The case was continued to Friday.

ATTEMPT TO BURN PLUM ISLAND CHURCH

Newburyport, June 17.—A fire, declared by Police Chief Brennan to have been of incendiary origin, blazed beneath the Catholic chapel on Plum Island, early today.

A coast guard member discovered the blaze and sounded an alarm.

A pile of newspapers had been placed beneath the chapel and light sticks of wood on top of the paper. Then the kindling was ignited.

Chief Brennan refused to comment on a possible Ku Klux Klan connection with the incendiary blaze.

Checker Taxi

Saves the Boston Public a Million in Real Money

Checker cabs have travelled over six-million miles in two and a half years.

When we started, in 1921, down went taxicab rates and off went return trip charges for empty cabs. Other companies were compelled to follow our lead.

Then down went Checker rates again and again—others had to trail us. Checker took taxicab riding out of the luxury class,—and made it fit everybody's pocketbook.

By expert estimation a saving of at least ten cents per mile was the result of the advent of Checker. In addition to the six million miles which our cabs have travelled, all other taxi companies in Boston during the same time, travelled about four million miles,—the result—a million dollars saved to the public and a service equal to any in the United States.

Checker Taxi is a Boston Institution, founded by Bostonians and operated for the Boston public. It bases its claim for support solely on the quality of service given, the courtesy of its employes, together with the lowest rate of fare.

Every ride in a Checker Taxi carries with it the organized responsibility of a company both morally and financially responsible with a practicable system of operation, each employe eager to serve you.

SLEMP GIVES HIS VERSION OF BUTLER ROW

Says Reports of It Were Overdrawn, but Thinks the Bay State Man High-Handed

Cincinnati, June 17.—Reports of any disagreement between him and William M. Butler, Republican National Committee chairman, were overdrawn, said C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge on his arrival here from Washington.

C. B. Slemp W. M. Butler

"Reports of any disagreement between me and Mr. Butler were considerably overdrawn," said Slemp. "The statement that I had gone to the President and threatened to resign was also much stronger than the facts of the case.

"I went to the convention merely to observe how things were going and to pick up what facts I could that I believed should be reported to the President.

"I noticed there was some dissatisfaction on the part of some of the Republican leaders that they were not being consulted by Mr. Butler in the running of the convention, and it appeared to me, as well as to them, that he ought not to assume any individualistic policy in directing affairs, especially in the management of the coming presidential campaign.

"I believed he ought to be surrounded by a group of advisers representative of the leaders of the party from the various sections of the country and I so reported to the President. However, the President himself had already decided that such a course should be pursued."

Mr. Slemp came here to ascertain the condition of his cousin, P. W. Slemp, president of the Elkhorn Junior Coal Company, who is suffering from appendicitis.

Somerville, N. J., June 17.—James Spirley, farmer of Flagstown, two miles from here, died today of stab wounds inflicted by a neighbor in an argument over the right of a cow to trespass, according to the State police.

MARIE PREVOST AND HARLAN TO MARRY SOON

Wedding of Screen Heroine and Actor to Be Held in New York, Friends Say

Los Angeles, June 17. (I.N.S.)—Marie Prevost, motion picture actress, is to marry Kenneth Harlan, a screen hero, in New York, within a few days, Miss Prevost's friends told International News Service today.

It is less than a year since both the actress and Harlan, formerly dancing partner of Gertrude Hoffman, said "never again" when they were granted divorces. Miss Prevost was recently divorced from "Sonny" Gerke, automobile dealer, to whom she had been secretly wed for years.

Harlan was divorced in New York by Mrs. Florence C. Harlan, who was the widow of Frederick Belcher. She charged Harlan had made frequent trips to Atlantic City in company with Peggy Brady.

Marie Prevost is one of the few survivors of the "bathing beauty" assemble in the bygone days of the Sennett lot.

TRIED TO STOP THIEF IN STOLEN CAR

REP. WINSLOE AND NEIGHBORS

LAWMAKER IS PURSUED BY BURGLAR

State Representative Temple A. Winsloe of No. 276 Hollis avenue, Wollaston, returned home with his wife, and surprised a burglar at work in the house.

The burglar, in shirt sleeves, armed with a revolver, hands bleeding and face covered with a handkerchief, escaped in the Winsloe limousine.

Mr. Winsloe is an automobile dealer in Boston. That the thief had on him was evinced when Winsloe opened the kitchen door of his home.

"I know you Winsloe; stick up your hands or I'll shoot," barked the intruder.

The auto dealer, instead of putting up his hands, leaped behind a partition and made his way into the yard. The thief followed.

While Winsloe had entered the back door of the house Mrs. Winsloe had gone around and entered the front door.

The bandit ran close to her and threatened death if she made an outcry.

Winsloe ran to the home of James Lang nearby. He shouted to Mrs. Lang who immediately called the police.

Meantime, the stranger entered Winsloe's limousine and started off.

David Lang, aged eighteen; James Lang, aged twenty, and their sister Isabel, aged twenty-two, heard Winsloe's shouts as he ran ahead of the burglar. The brothers and sister leaped in front of the Winsloe car as the thief started the engine. The marauder leaped from the car and threatened to shoot them.

BAD FOREST FIRE NEAR SANDWICH, N. H.

Sandwich, N. H., June 17.—Large forces of men throughout this section are gathering here to fight a serious forest fire which has swept over acres of woodland on White Face Mountain and is spreading rapidly.

Although no buildings are in the path of the fire, officials fear that valuable timber will be destroyed if the blaze is not brought under control soon. The fire started yesterday. No estimate can be made, officials said, of the amount of ground covered by the blaze. Part of the burned area is of a high-grade hardwood owned by the government.

G. O. P. TO NOTIFY COOLIDGE JULY 20

Chicago, June 17 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge will learn officially about July 20 that he is the Republican candidate for President, and General Charles G. Dawes will find out that he is the vice-presidential running mate probably July 27, it was announced today by William M. Butler, Republican chairman. Chicago will be main headquarters in the campaign.

FIVE BANDITS GET PAYMASTER'S $28,000

Punxsutawney, Pa., July 17 (I.N.S.).—Five bandits held up Alex Caldwell, paymaster of the Russell Coal Company of Clymer, Pa., today and escaped with $28,000 in cash being brought to Clymer for the semi-monthly pay.

COUNCIL VOTES $5,000 FOR PHONE PROBE

Despite the attempts of President Donoghue to block the passage of Mayor Curley's order calling for the appropriation of $5,000 to cover expenses in the city's fight against telephone rate increases, now pending before the Public Utilities Commission at the State House, the Council voted unanimously in favor of the expenditure.

Donoghue, who is business agent of the Telephone Workers' Union, contended that the Legislature was the proper body to appropriate money for such an investigation, and that they has already assumed that responsibility by appropriating $15,000 for an investigation.

"Don't let them befog the issue," shouted Councillor Moriarty. "If the City of Boston had not opposed the increase it would already be in effect."

RAPS COMMISSION.

Councillor Gilbody declared that the entire Public Utilities Commission was nothing more "than rubber stamps of the corporations."

"It is worth $5,000 to hire lawyers to watch the Public Utilities Commission in order to safeguard the public," he added.

President Donaghue argued that the increase asked for by the telephone company would not affect the average telephone user, but would hit the large business houses and brokerage concerns, who, he claimed, have special telephone privileges and should be made to pay for it.

HITS CITY PHONES.

Councillor Moriarty pointed out that the city has switchboards in almost every department. "If the rates are increased we will have to pay," he said.

Samuel Silverman, assistant corporation counsel, explained that the subscriber whose toll calls averaged 10, 15, 25 and 30 cents would still be charged the same amount, but their speaking time would be cut down from five to three minutes. Business houses and retail stores, however, faced a 400 per cent increase, which of course would be passed on to the consumer.

Obtaining of the figures, showing the profits of the telephone company, he said had been blocked by the Public Utilities commission.

MEANS FIGHT LOST.

He estimated that the new increase if granted would mean $1,000,000 additional revenue to the telephone company. "They took the strike money out of their surplus and now they want to replenish it," Silverman declared.

"If we get out of the fight, there is no question but the Public Utilities Commission would grant the increase in rates," he said. "I don't know what is going to become of the future if they get away with this."

Donaghue said afterwards that he was not opposed to it in the first place, only he wanted to bring out the fact that it would not mean a general increase in telephone rates affecting every user of a telephone.

CARDINAL CONFIRMS 1,500

Cathedral Packed When 1500 Converts Are Taken Into the Roman Catholic Church

Before a congregation that packed the Cathedral of Holy Cross, Cardinal O'Connell today administered the sacrament of confirmation to 1,500 converts from various parishes in the archdiocese of Boston.

The sponsor for the men was L. Foster Stearns, son of Frank W. Stearns, chief advisor of President Coolidge. L. Foster Stearns, himself a convert, was formerly attached to the American Embassy in Paris. His wife was sponsor for the women.

Cardinal O'Connell was assisted by the Rev. William B. Finnegan, administrator of the Cathedral, and the Rev. A. F. Hickey, supervisor of the parochial schools of the diocese.

Prior to the administration of the sacrament mass was served by the Rev. Joseph A. Robinson. Father Hickey then welcomed the converts into the faith, after which the Cardinal appeared and began the ceremony. Following the administration of the sacrament Cardinal O'Connell addressed the converts, who were from all walks of life.

The converts were assisted in the altar by Jerome O'Neil and John Kirwin, who acted as ushers.

RAPS DEMOCRATS ON CAPE COD CANAL BILL

Washington, June 17.—Charging the Republicans with permitting big business to raid the public treasury, and criticizing the Democrats for not taking a more pronounced stand against the Cape Cod Canal bill, Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, Republican insurgent leader, in a review of the work of Congress placed in the Congressional Record today, declared the insurgent "success" "exceeded by far our hope."

The insurgents, Mr. Nelson said, by preventing "reactionary legislation" and promoting many progressive measures, gave the session an "unequalled record" in defying forces seeking special privilege.

MAY FILE "PADLOCK" CASES IN STATES

Washington, June 17.—Briefs under which injunction suits to padlock places violating the prohibition law may be filed in State as well as Federal courts are being prepared by the prohibition unit for distribution to State prosecuting attorneys. Filing of such cases in State courts, prohibition officials believe, will reduce the present crowded dockets in Federal courts.

Commissioner Haynes said today the 3,723 padlock cases instituted in the year and a half up to June 15 indicated the effectiveness of the injunction clause.

Stole $50,000 Worth of Hats; Gave Many to Sweethearts

Chicago, June 17.—Police were baffled by the theft of $50,000 worth of millinery from the Elsenrath Millinery Company in the last two years, until a detective observed girls wearing new hats at the rate of one for every day of the year.

Two weeks' work brought a solution of the mystery. Several girls were arrested, among them a number of millinera.

According to police, Joseph Titosky, Harry Sauralek and Abe Isaac were the chief "fences" through whom the stolen millinery was disposed of.

Isaac made a confession, saying he had bestowed the choicest hats upon his "girl." Search of her apartments brought forth sixty-nine creations.

"I didn't care for Isaac," she said, "but I do like hats."

CHARLESTOWN VETS PUMPING IT UP

PARADE IS BRILLIANT FEATURE

149th Anniversary of Famous Battle Is Observed in Charlestown

Favored by cloudless skies and balmy breezes, thousands of persons today participated in Charlestown's celebration of the 149th anniversary of the "Battle of Bunker Hill.

Regardless of specious arguments over the relative importance of Breed's Hill and Bunker's Hill it was the "Glorious Seventeenth" to all Charlestonians, and therefore to be observed in fitting fashion.

From sunrise on there was something taking place every minute, starting with the ringing of bells, blowing of whistles and firing of salutes.

One of the first events was an athletic carnival at the Sullivan Square Playground, which was followed by a Veteran Firemen's parade, and children's patriotic exercises on Bunker Hill Monument grounds, at which an address was delivered by Mayor Curley.

GLYNN MARCHES.

Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn, with District Chief Philip A. Tague of Charlestown, president of the Charlestown Veteran Firemen's Association and chief marshal of the veterans' parade, marched together.

Heading the line was the old Charlestown veteran's engine, followed by the members, with the older men and women in automobiles. Congressman Peter F. Tague and Thomas F. Fitzpatrick, the latter the director of the celebration, rode together in an automobile.

Then came veterans from many other cities with their bandsmen, headed by a detail of 200 uniformed Boston firemen in charge of Captain Edwin F. Richardson of Engine Company 13, Captain Bolan with Engine 27 and Ladder 9 of Charlestown, the two wood in modern fire-fighting apparatus.

In connection with the parade there was an all-day muster at the playground, where the veteran organizations played for prizes aggregating $500.

CHILDREN'S GAMES.

The children's exercises were participated in by between 1,500 and 2,000 children, and consisted of games and dancing. The exercises were in charge of Miss Cecilia Bainter, and there was a dancing recital by the pupils of Miss Bernadette M. Doyle.

At noon a salute was fired at the Navy Yard, and tea cream and cake served to children at Charlestown playgrounds.

In the afternoon came the biggest feature of the day, the military and civic parade, of which Charles A. Flanagan, junior vice-department commander of the United States Spanish War Veterans, was chief marshal and John S. Wilson, past commander of Colonel Fred B. Hogan Camp, U. S. W. V., was chief of staff.

Throughout the evening residents of the district kept open house, a banquet was scheduled for Chief Marshal Tague and staff of the veteran firemen, a number of band concerts were planned, together with a big dance arranged for the Knights of Columbus clubhouse on High street.

PROVIDENCE BOY BURNED TO DEATH

Providence, June 17.—Three-year-old Claude Upton of No. 86 Calvery street, was burned to death when his clothing caught fire at an unattended brush fire in a vacant lot near his home.

The boy wandered over to the fire from his home. His screams attracted Herbert B. Parkhurst and Hugh Healion. They wrapped the child in their coats and rushed him to the Rhode Island Hospital in the automobile of Max Siegal. Little Claude died shortly after reaching the hospital.

STEARNS AT AMHERST FOR COMMENCEMENT

Amherst, June 17.—More than 350 Amherst college alumni thronged the campus today for the class day events. Among those present was Frank W. Stearns of Boston, close friend and adviser of President Coolidge and a graduate and trustee of the college. Twelve classes, ranging from 1875 to 1922, held reunions and the alumni parade to Pratt field to witness the Amherst-Williams baseball game was a feature.

NEW MACHINE AIDS FRANKS CASE DEFENCE

Chicago, June 17.—Dr. Karl M. Bowman, Boston psychiatrist, and Dr. H. S. Hulbert, Chicago alienist, continue tests of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr. On these tests the defence hopes to base a plea of insanity to explain the murder of Robert Franks.

A new machine, the Plethysmograph, supposed to register mental reflections, was the latest complicated apparatus to be used.

Leopold, the egocentric, was the first subject. He was praised by the two examiners to see just how flattery affected him. The results were kept secret by the two scientists.

If he showed reaction to words of flattery subtly whispered to him, the alienists probably then will offer the defence that that was what prompted him to commit the crime—his desire for notoriety. And, after having shown him to be insane they will attempt to prove that Leopold fled Loeb.

BELIEVED ABNORMAL.

Since the experts have begun their tests, Loeb and Leopold have become more exuberant.

Jailers attribute it to their interest in the "new fangled" machines or their realization that their families are making strong and determined efforts to keep them from the gallows.

Leopold is quoted by the newspapers as saying only the two defense attorneys, two examining alienists and Loeb and himself will ever know anything regarding the plan or execution of it that resulted in the double indictment of the two for capital offenses.

WOULD "UNMASK" LOEB.

He said both he and Loeb had told the entire truth to the examining scientists.

"They have pictured me as inordinately cruel, inhuman, and unfeeling," Leopold was quoted. "But 'Dicky' Loeb, evidently because of his guileless appearance, his winsome smile, and his soulful eyes seems to to have won the sympathy of the public."

"If the public only knew what I know about 'Dicky' Loeb, they would know that behind that mask of innocence there is a brain that is much more acute and subtle than mine and that he can maintain that appearance of innocence after having done things a short time before at which I would shudder."

MAGNUS JOHNSON IS EASILY RENOMINATED

St. Paul, June 17.—Republican nominees for United States Senator and Governor and the Farmer-Labor gubernatorial selection had not been definitely determined today when tabulation of returns from Monday's primary election was resumed here.

Magnus Johnson, Minnesota's junior Senator, was renominated on the Farmer-Labor ticket in a walkaway, registering a vote that may run on a ten to one ratio over the nearest of his two opponents.

For Governor, Theodore Christian son had a lead of 2,000 votes over Curtis M. Johnson on the Republican ticket, with the other four candidates pressing him closely.

Saw Brother Slain

SHIRLEY SHERMAN

Sister of "Bill" Brennan, heavyweight boxer, who was shot dead in New York cafe. She witnessed her brother's murder and aided in capture of slayer suspects. She is a cabaret entertainer.

FEAR MISSING BOY VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY

Relatives in Chelsea and Malden have been asked for information concerning Morris George Wallace, seventeen-year-old Commercial High School student, who has been missing from his home in Providence for more than a week.

The police are looking for a colored man whom the boy's sister, Samuel Wallace, suspects of having harmed his son. The Wallace's say the man whom he is alleged to have insulted his mother and administered a beating, after which he caused the arrest of the man on a charge of drunkenness.

Upon his release the man is said to have threatened to "get young Wallace."

The youth is described as five feet ten inches tall, 150 pounds in weight and dark hair, eyes and complexion. When he left home on the evening of January 9th were a dark brown suit, low brown shoes, brown socks and a new soft straw hat.

ONE KILLED AS TRAIN RUNS INTO HANDCAR

Brattleboro, Vt., June 17.—One man was killed and four others escaped with their lives by jumping from a handcar on which they were riding when it was struck by a locomotive on the Boston & Maine Railroad between Hinsdale and Winchester, N. H., today. Henry Richardson, sixty, of Winchester, lost his life, leaving a wife and daughter. The other four members of the section gang escaped uninjured.

BRENNAN SLAIN IN DEFENDING GIRL'S HONOR

New York, June 17.—A defense of womanhood by William James (Bill) Brennan, heavyweight ring fighter, brought the bullets that killed him, it was revealed today by Assistant District Attorney Morgan A. Jones.

Brennan, according to the prosecution officer, resented remarks made to a woman by Joseph Pioli, held with Terence O'Neil for the murder of Dan Calgero.

The woman, whose name was not revealed, had gone to Brennan's Tia Juana cafe with Pioli and a party. Pioli made abusive remarks to her as they were leaving. Brennan interfered and either pushed or hit Pioli. Then came the fatal shots, almost before the eyes of Shirley Sherman, well-known dancer, Brennan's sister.

Pioli and O'Neil were biased roundly by a crowd collected outside the court when the alleged murderers were arraigned for the killing.

Pioli has been identified as the man who, last New Year's Day, killed his brother, Santo, and wounded his mother, in an affray at No. 324 Sixty-fifth street. He is well known at tracks throughout the East as a "tout." O'Neil is a former "ham-an-egger" of the squared circle.

A bench warrant for Pioli on the charge of murdering his brother was produced when the men were arraigned before Magistrate Hogan. The magistrate set June 23 as the date for a hearing of the two charges against Pioli and one against O'Neil.

Before that time, however, it is expected, they will be indicted also for the murder of James Mullen, State trooper and a friend of Brennan's.

BAR HAVANA BRAND ON DOMESTIC CIGARS

Washington, June 17.—The use of the words "Havana" and "Tampa" in connection with the sale of cigars manufactured from tobacco not grown in Cuba or Tampa, Fla., was declared by the Federal Trade Commission today to be an unfair method of competition.

Jap Bridal Couples Flocking to U. S. to Beat Alien Ban

Seattle, June 17.—Immigration inspectors, examining 288 Japanese who arrived aboard the liner President McKinley found scores who claimed long years of residence in this country who could not speak a word of English.

Advices received here asserted that 2,700 Japanese will seek entrance to the United States through Seattle before July 1. Dozens of bridal couples were among the passengers.

Tokio, June 17.—The last of the pre-exclusion rush of emigrants seeking to return to the United States before the new immigration law arrives left here today on the President Jackson. The liner carried 200 Japanese.

Here's What's Going On Tonight in Charlestown

CONVICT EARLE OF FORGERY BUT DROP KIDNAP

Although he escaped punishment on a kidnaping charge through lack of prosecution, Charles A. Earle of Boston was today found guilty on a charge of forgery of a check for $100 on the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Chas. E. Earle

He was sentenced to an indeterminate penalty at Concord Reformatory.

Earle, who once figured in an elopement with a Hyde Park girl, became involved in the kidnaping case a month ago, when Doris Grant, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Grant of Adlo, disappeared.

The police, on information that Earle and a woman companion named Anna Krzewicki had taken the child with the permission of its parents, ostensibly for a short trip, traced the pair to Troy, N. Y., and found the child with them.

When the child reported that Earle and his companion had treated her kindly the mother refused to prosecute. But Mr. Grant decided to press a charge against Earle of having passed the bad check. A charge of violating the Mann act was hung over Earle.

BIG SENTENCES FOR TICKET SCALPERS

New York, June 17.—District Attorney Banton, after a conference today with State Comptroller James W. Fleming said that ticket speculators found guilty of charging visitors to the Democratic convention excessive prices would receive the maximum jail sentence provided by the State law which prohibits the sale of an amusement ticket for more than fifty cents above its face value.

Mr. Fleming added that anyone found guilty of scalping would lose his license and fined $1,000.

BOSTON AMERICAN PICKS ALL-SCHOLASTIC BASEBALL TEAM

FUTURE RUTHS IN MAKING

By FRED C. LANE

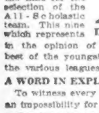
The cheers from the stands have died away. The sharp command of the coach and the roar of the umpire are heard no more. The scholastic baseball season has come to a close. The lads who entertained the throngs have scattered until next Fall.

And now is the time for the selection of the All-Scholastic team. This nine which represents in the opinion of the writer, the best of the youngsters cavorting in the various leagues.

Danny McFayden

A WORD IN EXPLANATION.

To witness every contest played is an impossibility for one person. This makes it necessary for the writer to take into confidence, close followers of the sport, coaches and various members of the teams before deciding just whose name will fit the columns of the Boston American All-Scholastic team.



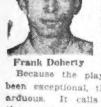
Frank Doherty

Because the play this year has been exceptional, the task is more arduous. It calls for more than the usual study and comparisons. Last year there were positions that found only mediocre players to fill them. Such conditions do not exist this year.

TWO TEAMS PICKED.

That none may be missed, the writer has decided on picking two teams along with a honorable mention list. In this will be found the cream of the scholastic ball players of Greater Boston.

Since the pitching department is one of the most important positions on the nine we will first give a little thought to the moundsmen. For the third successive year, Danny McFayden of Somerville High is our choice.



Fred McMenimen

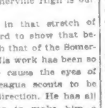
Not a twirler in that stretch of years has a record to show that begins to equal with that of the Somerville schoolboy. His work has been so impressive as to cause the eyes of various major league scouts to be centered in his direction. He has all the qualifications to make him a leading college hurler if he decides to go farther.

KELLEHER SECOND BOX CHOICE

Since it is necessary to have at least two pitchers on the first nine, we select Paul Kelleher of Roslindale High as ranking next to McFayden. His hurling has been instrumental in the Maroon and Gold teams winning the Catholic High School championship of the State.

Francis Hogan

The foremost contender for catching honors go to Fred "Bo" McMenimen of the same school. He is without question the most valuable backstop to be graduated from schoolboy ranks in years. In fact his playing has been of such a nature as to cause him to be named as one of the early date the leading candidate for catching honors in Boston College next year.



Eddie Costello

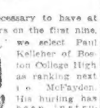
At first base, Eddie Costello of Jamaica Plain High is our choice. He is one of the best defensive players to be uncovered in years. In addition he is a hitter, whose timely clouts have won many games for his team.

CAREY OF DEDHAM AT SECOND

At the keystone position there was little to choose between Frank Carey of Dedham High and Bellow of Boston College High. The steady game played by the former during the season cause him to have an advantage over Bellow who had a tendency to be erratic at times, but not fully enough to cause him to be overlooked.

Next in order comes the shortstop position. It is one of the most difficult positions on a ball club today and a great deal must be overlooked in the way of errors when judging the calibre of schoolboys.

Andy Moore of Mechanic Arts, the winner of the City High School championship, is our choice for the task. He is well qualified to fill that position on any college team at the present time. His work has been little short of spectacular and we feel that no mistake has been made in this selection.



Paul Kelleher

Duck Harrell of Dorchester High who won the honors on the Boston American team as last season's third baseman, was not up to snuff this season and as a result has been replaced by Everett Donaghy of Boston Latin School for the hot corner position.

Harrell was surrounded by a poor team this year which failed to give this youngster a chance to show his wares. On the other hand Donaghy has played superb baseball all through the season and is entitled to the honors for his hitting if nothing else.

OUTFIELD IS STRONG.

Everett Donaghy

In our opinion no stronger trio could be gathered together. All have proven themselves reliable in the outer pasture, are possessed of good throwing arms and make dangerous men at the plate in a pinch.

Of this trio could be selected one who stands out above the rest, and in our opinion, Hogan of Somerville is the chap. Though lean in years, he is a veteran in experience and this, coupled with his tremendous strength and ability, makes him one of the best to come forward in years.

ROXBURY CLUB OPENS SEASON WEDNESDAY

The Roxbury Catholic Club will open its twilight season at home on Wednesday evening, June 18, at the J. J. Connelley Playground, opposing the Boston Blue Sox, who claim the colored championship of the State.

Mawn is slated to pitch for the home team with Walsh behind the bat. The game will be called at 6:15 sharp and a large crowd is anticipated for the opening of the twilight season.

BALSA, BULL FIGHTER, IS K. O.'D BY JOHNSON

New York, June 17.—Floyd Johnson, the Iowa heavyweight, gave Andreas Balsa, so-called Spanish heavyweight champion, such a beating up in their bout that it was stopped after two minutes and 35 seconds of the third round had elapsed. Johnson was awarded the verdict by a technical knockout.

LEWIS PUTS UP FORFEIT FOR TITLE BOUT

With the matching of Ed Strangler Lewis to meet Stanley Stasiak for the world's heavyweight title at the new Boston Arena on Tuesday night, July 1, Paul Bowser has arranged a fitting climax to close the wrestling season for the summer.

Strangler Lewis

Lewis would not agree to meet Stasiak but after one month of wrangling posted $5000 to meet the winner of the Stasiak-Zbyszko match. Of course Zbyszko is a stable mate to the champion and was sent in to do everything in his power to spoil Stasiak. If he couldn't beat him he was at least instructed to make things so bad that there would be no demand for a Stasiak-Lewis bout.

Now however, the match is on and Big Ed will have to go to high once more to beat the Polish Lion. He has already wired for a training camp from one week to ten days in advance and it is a sure bet that he wants to be right when he crawls into the ring the night of July first.

Future plans of the men's training will be announced in a few days.

RAMSEY NEW HOCKEY COACH AT PRINCETON

Princeton, N. J., June 17.—W. B. Ramsey of Toronto, Ont., has been appointed Princeton hockey coach for next Winter, it was learned here today from the Princeton athletic board of control. Mr. Ramsey, who was a member of the famous Canadian hockey team which won the Olympic championship at Chamonix last Winter, is regarded as one of the foremost Canadian amateurs in the game.

LARGE FIELD AT READVILLE TRACK

Today's Program at Readville

Two-year-old trot . . Purse $800
Three-year-old trot, 2:20 Class . . . . . Purse $800
2:15 trot . . . . . Purse $1,000
2:09 pace . . . . . Purse $1,000

The light harness horses will have their first outing of the season this afternoon at the Readville race course. The meeting scheduled for three days, is the inaugural program of the Bay State "short ship" for the season of 1924, and which promises to be one of the best since first held eleven years ago.

Some classy two and three year old trotters are to compete this afternoon, but it is doubtful if there is one which will show the form displayed by last year's sensational Commodore Wilson, winner of twelve straight last season.

Faith Sunshine and Lena Sunshine, owned by C. H. Traiser of this city and Wilson's Express, are three which have shown good recent form.

The 2:09 pace has a dandy field of side steppers, Robert M. Charley Direct, and Peter Loo8 standing out a bit better than the rest of the field. The 2:15 trot has a large cluster slated to take the word. The Boston trotter Mr. Hoover has been going great guns, and the same goes for Eva Price and Billy Fleming's Prodigal Guy.

McCREARY AND STONE AID SHARKEY TRAIN

By JACK CONWAY.

Battling McCreary, world's colored light-heavyweight champion by virtue of a win over Kid Norfolk, today joined Jack Sharkey's training camp at Wamesit. McCreary will work out each day with Sharkey, and as a result the latter should be in fine condition when he enters the ring against Floyd Johnson of Iowa at the Suffolk A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building on next Monday night.

Rocky Stone

McCreary helped condition Sharkey for his recent mill with Eddie Record. Inasmuch as the Roxbury youth who hopes to follow in the footsteps of the immortal John L. Sullivan won by a knockout, he apparently profited by the experience he gained battling with Alex McLean's protege.

Rocky Stone, New England amateur heavyweight champion who makes his debut as a professional next Monday night, is also getting himself fit at Wamesit.

Sharkey realizes the importance of his meeting with Johnson and will try to win by a knockout as he has in every bout in which he has ever engaged with the exception of his first meeting with Record. As the former sailor later knocked out Record, he figures he has more than evened that score.

The recent explosion of Harry Wills in his bout with Bartley Madden, the public's failure to rate Tom Gibbons anything other than a great boxer and Luis Firpo's lack of science leaves the heavyweight division open for a new contender. Some youngster now more or less unknown will probably be the one to win the championship from Jack Dempsey. Sharkey, very naturally, would like to be that fortunate young man.

JOHNNY SHEPPARD TO BOX HARRO AND MONTREAL.

Johnny Sheppard, Woburn bantamweight, who recently won a decision over Abe Goldstein, is also at Wamesit. He is training for a bout with Johnny Harko at Manchester, N. H., on Friday night. Harko has a win to his credit over Sheppard and will try to repeat the feat. A week from tomorrow night Sheppard will tackle Young Montreal at Providence.

TONY THOMAS SIGNED TO CLASH WITH CHICK SUGGS

New Bedford promoters have booked Tony Thomas of that city to mingle with Chick Suggs of Newport, R. I., in a ten-round bout on a week from Thursday night. Thomas is a strong, rugged youth and was parading along Victory Trail until he collided with Pancho Villa in this city. Since the Villa bout, Thomas has got going again and feels confident he will make things interesting for Suggs.

JULIAN AND BYRON TO BATTLE AT BROCKTON

Charley Mealey has Tony Julian, the best of the New England lightweights, signed to meet Sailor Byron in a ten-round bout at Brockton on Friday night. This contest was originally booked for last week, but was postponed when Byron suffered a slight injury while training. Byron is in condition once more and is prepared to carry Julian along at a rapid pace. Julian has been doing his training at Kelly & Hayes' gym on account of the scarcity of sparring partners in Brockton.

EVERETT TRIMS ABBOT NINE, 6-4

Everett continued its winning streak in the Boston Twilight League race by trimming Abbot, 6 to 4, last evening at Everett. Murphy, the Abbot centre fielder, featured the hitting with a home run. His team outhit Everett eleven hits to eight, but the hits were not bunched. The Everett infield gave Stuenhiller, the pitcher, air tight support and took sixteen chances without a slipup.

SOX ON BRINK OF FALL TO THIRD PLACE

Detroit, June 17.—Having lost two games in a row here, the second one yesterday a shutout, the score being 3 to 0 in favor of the Detroit Tigers, it is up to the Red Sox to take today's contest or tumble into third place.

Ehmke

To prevent such a contingency, Manager Fohl plans on starting Howard Ehmke, the former Detroit pitcher, who has been poison as well as gall and wormwood to the Tigers since he donned the red striped hosiery.

The Tigers will probably retaliate with Holway. The latter has the best record of any Tiger pitcher, on paper, but the last time he appeared against the Red Sox he lasted less than two innings.

The defeat of yesterday, in a splendidly played game, was due entirely to the fact that the Boston outfit could not hit Lil Stoner. This pitcher has seldom turned in a better performance. The Sox hits were scattering through five innings. Only once did the easterners get two blows in a frame and they came with two out in the ninth, so they didn't avail to keep the Hub entry from a whitewash.

CRIMSON CREW HAS DAY OFF

Red Top, Conn., June 16.—The Harvard crews spent a day of complete rest yesterday. In the morning they boarded launches, which carried them to New London and aboard the steam yacht Corsair, the guests of J. P. Morgan, Jr., who enjoyed a long cruise on Long Sound and across to Block Island. Here the boat anchored and, although the owners gave the boys a dip, but none of them ventured in the cool waters. However, the student waiters who were aboard took a dip and reported the water very cool.

This afternoon the Yale varsity crew will call on the Harvard crew to make their annual visit. At the same hour the freshman squad will go to Yale quarters to pay their respects to the Yale yearlings.

ST. PAUL PITCHER COMING TO YANKS

St. Paul, June 17.—Cliff Markle, one of the leading pitchers of the American Association, will report to the New York Yankees at Cleveland Thursday, it was announced today by the St. Paul club.

Three pitchers and an outfielder in addition to an announced cash consideration will come to St. Paul in the deal.

Markle was the property of New York in 1920, but was sent to Atlanta of the Southern Association. Atlanta sold him to Cincinnati Nationals and he came to St. Paul early in 1923 in part payment for Rube Benton.

So far this year Markle has won 11 and lost 4. Nine of his victories were in a row.

U. S. OLYMPIC RIFLE TEAM IS WINNER

Rheims, France, June 16.—The United States Olympic rifle team won the international rifle tournament here, concluded today. The American team's grand total for the three days was 5,284 points. Switzerland was second with 5,184.

The scores follow: United States 1786 points; Switzerland 1744; Argentina 1714; Finland 1694; Denmark 1693; France 1691; Sweden 1689; Holland 1685; Italy 1628; Norway 1628; Belgium 1622; Haiti 1598; Czechoslovakia 1322; Rumania 979.

CORRY WILL RACE AT REVERE TOMORROW

Frank Corry, the famous Australian cyclist, will make his initial appearances of the season at the Revere cycle track tomorrow night. He will compete in the 30-mile paced race and his opponents will be Frank Keenan, Charley Verkeyn and Henri Fossier.

A junior 10-mile paced race and the sprint and handicap races will precede the main contest.

BIG REGATTA ON HUDSON TODAY

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 17.—Fifteen crews, representing six colleges, will compete in the three races of the intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson River here today.

In the day's most important event, the varsity race to be rowed at 5 p. m., Eastern standard time, Columbia, Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania are the favorites.

Rowing experts declare they are of the opinion that the race will be decided between these two sets of eight in the last mile of the three-mile event. Other colleges to compete in the varsity race will be Wisconsin, Syracuse, Columbia and Cornell.

The first race, the junior varsity, will be rowed at 3:15 p. m., with crews from Washington, Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Syracuse competing.

The second race, the freshman, will be rowed by the crews from Columbia, Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania at 4 o'clock.

GIANTS RELEASE JOE OESCHGER TO MINORS

New York, June 17.—Joe Oeschger, the Giants' pitcher, acquired from the Boston Braves in a Winter trade, has been waived out over the National League and addressed to the Louisville Club of the American Association as part payment for Weyland Dell, the recruit. Joe isn't sure that he wants the job with Louisville and is delaying his departure.

AMERICAN NINE TOPS NEWS BUREAU, 10-9

The Boston American baseball nine defeated the Boston News Bureau, 10 to 9, in a slugging match at Columbus Park, South Boston, yesterday. It was the second league victory of the season for the hard hitting American aggregation.

VETERANS INVITED TO CALL AND RECEIVE ADVICE

By SOLDIERS' FRIEND

Veterans of the World War are respectfully advised that the Bonus application blanks are here.

They will be ready tomorrow at the Soldiers' Friend Bureau of the Boston American and the Boston Advertiser.

Any veteran who desires assistance in making out his application for adjusted compensation, popularly called the bonus, may have it for the asking.

The material will be at hand for the taking of finger prints. There will be no charge for anything.

The Soldiers' Friend Bureau of the Hearst newspapers in Boston, the Boston American and the Boston Advertiser, is situated on the street floor at No. 80 Summer street. At your service. No stairs to climb.

The Soldiers' Friend continues to be bombarded with questions about the bonus from all part of New England. Our friends who desire replies by mail will kindly remember to send along a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Answers to some recent inquiries:

X. Y., Boston.

Q.—In service on a mine sweeper which operated along the Atlantic coast during the war, home service or overseas service?

A.—The law provides that overseas service includes service afloat, but not on receiving ships. Service on mine sweepers will be regarded as overseas service.

L. J. B., Woonsocket, R. I.

Q.—I entered the service after November 12, 1918, and served until July 1, 1919. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A.—The bonus law provides that a veteran who was a member of the military or naval forces of the U. S. at any time after April 5, 1917, and before November 12, 1918, is entitled to receive the bonus, provided the veteran was discharged under honorable conditions. Persons who enlisted in the army or navy on or after November 12, 1918, will not be eligible.

Mrs. W. H. C., Salem, Mass.

Q.—I am the widow of a World War veteran and have eight children to support. My late husband was honorably discharged. Will the bonus be paid to me now or must I wait twenty years?

A.—You, as the widow of a veteran, will be entitled to receive the bonus if you have not remarried. If you have married again, all the children under eighteen years of age will be entitled to receive the bonus in equal shares. After you have filed an application for the bonus and the amount of the paid-up policy is determined, payments will be made in your case in ten equal quarterly installments, the first about March 1, 1925.

P. L. M., Eastport, Me.

Q.—I enlisted in the navy on February 25, 1918, entered active service on March 19, 1918, and was honorably discharged July 8, 1919. What will be the amount of my bonus?

A.—The law allows veterans an adjusted service credit of $1.00 a day for home service after the first sixty days and $1.25 per day for overseas service. The number of days which you served, minus sixty, multiplied by two and a half, will give you the approximate face value of your adjusted compensation policy.

Mrs. L. L. P., Ware.

Q.—My son, who enlisted in April, 1918, was killed in battle October 10 of that year. At the time of his death I was dependent upon him for support, my husband having died many years ago. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A.—You will be eligible to make application.

Mrs. M. D., Canada.

Q.—My brother enlisted in the navy in December, 1917. He was born in Canada, and was not an American citizen. He said he was an American citizen when he enlisted. Will he be entitled to the bonus?

A.—The bonus law provides that all veterans in the military or naval forces of the U. S. between April 5, 1917, and November 12, 1918, and who were discharged under honorable conditions, are entitled to the bonus. However, it will be necessary for your brother, if he is living, to fill out an official application blank in which he must answer the various questions as to his service in the U. S. forces. After it is filed in Washington, the authorities will pass upon it and determine whether or not he is entitled to receive the benefits. The law contains penalties of fines and imprisonment if false or fraudulent statements are made in the application.

J. T. McK., Springfield.

Q.—Is the widow of a deceased veteran entitled to the bonus if she was not living with him at the time of his death, having left the veteran many years ago for no just cause. She never claimed support and never received any?

A.—The widow of a veteran is entitled to make application for the bonus, and she is presumed, under the law, to have been dependent upon the veteran for support by showing that they lived together as husband and wife. If it can be shown otherwise, the bonus will be paid to the veteran's dependents in the following order: (1) To the children under eighteen years of age in equal shares. (2) If there are no children, then to the mother, or (3) father of the veteran, in the order named, provided that they were dependent upon him for support at the time of his death.

their "heroic ascent." That was the thing in the Mt. Everest expedition that impressed the younger Rockefeller.

SOME DEMOCRATS are mixing the same old political medicine. They talk of nominating John W. Davis, estimable ex-Ambassador to Great Britain, now official lawyer of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.

That takes you back to good old Parker days and it DOESN'T disturb the sleep of Coolidge and Dawes.

Some of McAdoo's friends say nothing can prevent his nomination, because "nobody entering a convention with his strength has ever been beaten."

That may be, but what about an absolute determination on the part of Thomas F. Ryan, who controls Tammany Hall, and others of the "best financial minds," whose friends say positively that McAdoo shall NOT be nominated, no matter what else happens?

THERE IS much money in the United States. Secretary Mellon's $120,000,000 treasury certificates, paying only 2¾ per cent. interest, were subscribed four times over.

Regular interest rates should be around 4 per cent. before long. That isn't a good sign, unfortunately. It means that men with money are not putting it into new individual enterprises.

One intelligent man said not long ago, in regard to prices:

"Prices are not going up. It is the dollar that is coming DOWN."

HERE IS official recognition of the radio's importance. Senator Pat Harrison will postpone his speech as temporary chairman of the National Democratic Convention until evening, that radio listeners may get better results. "And the night shall be filled with music" with a vengeance. Longfellow would be surprised to know how it happens.

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By Wm. F. Kirk

PA listened from a Radio set to our house last nite & he fixed it up in the dining room & all the time he was fixing it he was telling us about the swell music it was goin over.

Will it work all right? sed Ma. Why not? sed Pa. All of them new work all rite soon they are fixed sed Pa. In a few minutes you will be listening to sweet strains of music that will fall sure upon a lovin memrys of Pa's golden childhood, sed Pa.

It kinda seems like preshus, sed Ma. I wish they cud make a machine that wud bring back my golden childhood to me, sed Ma.

Then Pa sed, well, all is in readiness. Now listen.

So all three of us sat & listend & sure enuff after a while we herd sumthing, it sounded like the cat scratching on the back wood door.

What orkestry is that? sed Ma. What menn a orkestry, sed Pa. That is a man telling a story.

I cant heer no words, only scratching, I sed.

Be peshunt, Bobbie, sed Pa. Be peshunt.

That is all I can heer, too, sed Ma, scratch, scratch, scratch, the cats are marching, sed Ma.

It doesn't seam to be working just rite yet, sed Pa. But it will, it will. We must git the Statistics.

You mean the catticks, sed Ma. Scratch, scratch, sed Ma.

Then Pa got kind of huffy. he yanked the Radio off of the table & went in the other room & started to read the baseball scores in the paiper.

Why doant you git those baseball scores from this wunderful Radio set? sed Ma.

Never mind the Radio set, sed Pa.

Bobbie & I will set it up ourself, sed Ma, so we cat it up & after a minnit we herd a buetiful time boxing played by a band in Chicago.

There, you see, sed Pa, we hev com out of the other room, you are not so smart after all.

Is that so? sed Ma. It seams to me I am pritty smart. I knew how to fix his Radio so it wud work, which is more than you cud do. I sit marches out it, you only got scratches, sed Ma.

The more I think of it, the more smarter Ma is & the less smarter Pa is. Sumtimes I wonder if my wife will be more smarter than what I am when I am grown up & have a wife.

Well, wife, sed Pa, dident I tell you that this Radio wud be wunderful men we got it going?

When we got it going? sed Ma, fooling, sed Ma, who got this Radio going?

You did, Ma, I sed. You are the smartest lady in our town, O. K. I sed. You can fix anything, I sed. Maybe you can fix it so I git a dollar for a new fish trap, I sed. & you bet Ma can, Joe.

3-MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning

CENTRAL AMERICA is a country of constant surprises to the traveler, and none of the cluster of little republics which occupy the isthmus that connects North and South America is more remarkable for surprises than Costa Rica.

Costa Rica has waxed wealthy and prosperous through the fruit industry. Even its port and coast towns perfectly reflect something of this well being, but San Jose, the capital is the best evidence. San Jose is located in the mountains of Costa Rica, more than three-quarters of a mile above the ocean, and enjoys one of the most temperate and delightful climates in the world.

There is no city more modern, better groomed or more comfortable than San Jose. Its population is more than 35,000, and all except the laboring class are of unmixed Spanish blood.

The streets are wide and all macadamized. They are perfectly lighted by electricity. Fine automobiles make them animated. There is a beautiful little opera house where performances of merit are often given by subsidized foreign companies.

The houses are all one-story, to minimize the danger of earthquakes.

San Jose in its mountain fastness is difficult of access. There is a railroad which runs from Port Limon on the Atlantic to Puerto Arenas on the Pacific, which is made profitable by the large crops of coffee, but it is an engineering marvel or it could never have spanned those mountains.

San Jose has high school and colleges, including schools of medicine and law, a public library and museum. The art and literature of the republic are usually educated abroad. The boys in America can usually be found in Jesuit and Redemption convents. Their foreign travel does not discontent them with their charming little city and they usually settle back contentedly into its life after their return from their cultural pilgrimages.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commissioner.

AN obstruction of the bowels is an affliction that is at once painful and dangerous. Because of the greater variety of foodstuffs that are obtainable during the summer the danger from this affliction is greater at this season of the year.

The obstruction is caused by the fecal matter clogging up in the intestines.

Dr. Mahoney.

The victim first suffers severe cramps in the lower abdomen. These pains come at intervals. As the trouble progresses the pains occur more frequently until finally the pain is continuous.

The symptoms are similar to appendicitis, but the pains are in the middle line of the body, whereas in appendicitis the pains are at the lower right side of the abdomen. Complete constipation, of course, is one of the symptoms.

Vomiting is another symptom. The patient vomits as from any other stomach complaint at first. Then green bile is cast off the stomach and finally comes a fluid, brown in color and fecal in odor. The obstruction dams up the intestinal contents and as they ferment, gas is formed and this causes distention of the abdomen.

The patient suffers greatly. The face is pinched, the pulse is rapid and faint, and cold sweat bathes the skin. A great fever and thirst soon appear.

To get rid of the trouble do not use purgatives or cathartics. Employ large quantities of warm water, injecting it very slowly into the bowel. Use no force. Hot fomentations may be applied to the abdomen. Above everything else, get a doctor as quickly as possible.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

I have been troubled with sort of epileptic attacks since 1921. In 1920 I underwent an operation for tumor of the brain. Some say I have not got epilepsy. Should you recommend a specialist on stomach or nervous troubles? R. L. G.

I would suggest that you write to the Massachusetts General Hospital and ask them to provide you with a list of nervous specialists. I do not recommend the name of any physician or specialist.

Are soft, bleeding gums always a sign of pyorrhea? Is there a remedy for such a case? L. T.

Gums which are soft and bleed readily are not healthy, although you may not have pyorrhea. I would advise you to see your dentist, as there is undoubtedly some pathological condition which is causing your trouble.

Am troubled with mosquitoes. Could you suggest a way to get rid of them? L. F. T.

I would suggest that you see to it that there is no water standing around which will serve as a breeding place for mosquitoes. Of course, if you are near a pond or stream, the only remedy would be the oiling of the adjacent bodies of water.

Needs Men's Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I received last week from P. A., Allston, a large bundle of men's socks and have written and thanked her. As it was some time since I wrote to you, I was beginning to think there was nothing to the Helping Hand, but I don't think it is a joke now. I need badly men's clothing, small size, and rompers or suits for a child two or three years old. Many thanks to the Helping Hand and all its hard workers.

MRS. B. E. M.

Sometimes it is not possible to fill appeals when they arrive, but we supply needs just as fast as it is possible.

Clothes for Girls

Editor Helping Hand:

I have some dresses to fit a girl six and twelve years old, also girls' shoes, sizes 12½ and 4½. A pair of lady's shoes, size 6; girl's coat, size 6; raincoat and cape and a few other things. Kindly let me know if you have anyone who could use these things, as I am going away soon and would like to dispose of them before I go.

Thank you, Mrs. L. M., whose address has been sent you, has girls the ages you mention, and, as both husband and son are out of work she is greatly in need.

Needs Reading Matter

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a young man working in the country, and have no friends that I can appeal to for some reading matter. If someone could send me a few magazines or books to keep me from being so lonely I would be very thankful to them. L. J.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Travel broadens. It helps us grow. It helps us to think. It helps us to make ourselves more interesting to ourselves and to others. It increases our knowledge and understanding of human nature.

Like most things worthwhile, travel costs. It costs money. But travel, like advertising, should be regarded as an investment rather than as an expense.

It is a pity that travel so often is confined to the well-to-do. Unfortunately, those who would profit most by travel are those who are able to travel the least.

Given so, more travel is now indulged in by Americans not of the well-to-do class than by the people of modest circumstances in any other country.

In fact, have the reputation abroad of being the greatest globe-trotters on earth. This little anecdote illustrates this point:

Vesuvius was rather active and various parties of visitors were watching it. The volcano gave one particularly violent upheaval, causing one American to remark to another. "That reminds me of H——."

"These Americans do travel some, don't they?" remarked one nearby Englishman to another.

News that the United States Government has interested itself in arranging for visits to France, particularly the battlefields, by our young men who fought in the World War is to be cordially welcomed. It is hoped to carry through many such trips this Summer and next. The United States lines, running Government-owned ships, are sponsoring this timely plan, and have fixed as a starter a thirty-day veterans' reunion tour which will allow about fifteen days in France.

The total cost to each veteran will be only $275.

The plan is the outcome of an idea which has been exercising the mind of a fellow-journalist, R. M. Bryan, of New York, for several years discussed it with me repeatedly. In a talk with Mr. Bryan, who served in the war as captain in the quartermaster corps, he described intimate story of how the plan found birth:

"Everyone desires to travel. Most people, because of the course followed by steamship companies, think of ocean travel only in terms of the luxury class. Travel helps a lot. One naturally finds the traveled man the more interesting. It is usually found also, that he is the most successful. Some of my friends, now successful men, had to gratify their way to Europe as cattle ships. In my own case, an idea gained on my first trip to Europe in 1912 has increased my earnings every year since.

"So, shortly after the war, I resumed my trips to Europe. I have found that veterans of the war, with whom I have extensive contact, owe me my trips abroad. When asked why they don't do the same thing the reply has invariably been that they could not afford it.

"The eager interest shown by the veterans to be able to visit Europe, especially France, before the traces of the war have all been removed, set me thinking on ways and means. Recently I set out for Europe on the Leviathan—the most famous of all troop ships. With the thought much in my mind. I had been at sea only two days when I felt I had the solution.

"I radioed the suggestion to the United States Lines that if they would give over one voyage of their third cabins exclusively to the veterans for certain Summer trips and provide in France an inexpensive tour, whereby the veteran could spend all the time that he desired in Paris, allowing ample time to visit the battlefields, I felt sure such tours would be liberally patronized.

"They immediately radioed me, expressing interest and asking for further details.

"On next visiting France I made it a point to ascertain the attitude of the French people towards these excursions. I found them most eager to co-operate, not only to make the tours of great interest to the veterans, but to make them so moderate in cost as to make it possible for the greatest number to enjoy the trips.

"Reaching home, I found practically everyone, from generals to privates, who had taken part in the war, eager to have these tours started.

"The action of the United States Lines, as now announced, is the culmination.

"Any veteran who is not able to go this Summer has only to save $5 a week to enjoy a trip next Summer."

"The average age of those who saw service in France was very young," says Mr. Bryan. "Moreover, the soldier had no other thought than that of fighting to win the war. He had not time to study the country or its people. Moreover, France in the turmoil of war was not in a position to give visitors the proper perspective of its true beauty and wealth, nor were its citizens, weighted down under four years of struggle, in the frame of mind to show to the American soldier their best natures.

"The picture the soldier will get in France this year and next year will be entirely different. He will come back a broader and better citizen."

An attractive idea, is it not?

Gas Stocks Advance to New Tops for Year After Federal Court Finding

STOCK PRICES RUN HIGHER IN NEW YORK

Gas stocks advanced to new highs for 1924 on the New York Stock Exchange, reflecting the Federal Court decree holding the $1 gas law unconstitutional.

Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Union Gas, Columbia Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, American Water Works and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit all sold at fresh heights for the year.

Kresge jumped more than 15 in a record top. Woolworth added 2 to its recent 22-point gain.

Sporadic short covering carried many stocks higher, although professional attempts to force a reaction were partially successful in a few of the more dull and neglected shares. Leading rails, public utilities and industrials forged ahead under the leadership of Baldwin and American Can.

Omission of Kelly-Springfield 6 per cent. preferred dividends caused a reaction of 2¾ points in these shares and 1¾ points in the 8 per cent. preferred issues.

Call money opened at 3 per cent.

Profit taking on a more liberal scale is certain sections of the list in the afternoon. Norfolk & Western, Delaware Lackawanna, Atlantic Refining and Allied Chemical showing heaviness.

The effect of this selling was neutralized by the buying for outside-priced specialties and the expanding inquiry for many of the minor shares.

General Electric sold at 236, a new high, while Mathieson Alkali rose 5 points, United Fruit 4¾, and South Porto Rico sugar 3. Nickel Plate was up 2 to a new 1924 high.

State Street Deserted for Bunker Hill Celebration

Today being a local holiday—Bunker Hill Day—only those interested in the Wall Street market came to town and with the banks closed state Street looked deserted. During the morning many of the clerks and officials of the brokerage offices decided to take advantage of the first real touch of summer weather and left for the day during the day and that the market continued broad and interesting.

Belgian 7½s Are Pushed to Fresh Top for Year

Although the bond market continued to display a strong undertone, trading quieted in New York dealings. Belgian 7½s rallied to a new 1924 high price at 103¾, and several other European issues showed moderate improvement, but Liberties declined with a drop in the franc.

Search for attractive railroad investments brought advances of a point or more in various medium-priced lines and several industrial mortgages were active at rising prices. Gas company issues responded to the favorable decision holding the $1 gas law unconstitutional. Brooklyn Union Gas 7s moving up almost 2 points.

Wall St. Gossip

NEGOTIATIONS reported under way for merger of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, John Nicholas Brown Plant and Jones & Laughlin Steel.

PRESIDENT GRAY of Union Pacific announced 1924 improvement program to cost $29,510,447. In 1923 $24,850,000 was spent.

PHILADELPHIA COMPANY is reported under accumulation.

ST. LOUIS Southwestern is said to be in line for special movement.

CONSOLIDATED GAS upward movement is evidently well defined.

SUBMARINE BOAT is meeting with favor in speculative circles on strength of profits expected from Diesel engine sales.

HOWE SOUND, a copper, has passed dividend.

FERTILIZERS should benefit by Atlanta report that from 8 to 10 per cent more fertilizer is being used this year than last.

TWO-THIRDS of fertilizer being used in Georgia district is said to be applied to cotton.

"See America First"

Every mile a delight

Arrange for this great trip now

BE sure the ticket for your Pacific Coast trip reads "Canadian National". Include the famous Triangle Tour with the scenic glories of Jasper National Park—the heart of the Canadian Rockies. Stop at Jasper Park Lodge (Rates $6 up, American plan). Then to Mt. Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, post glaciers, canyons, and beside rushing rivers to Prince Rupert. Next the glorious ocean voyage through the quiet waters of the "inside passage"—beauty and grandeur equalling Norway's fiords—to Vancouver, 700 miles by rail through mountains to Jasper. Every mile inspiring and delightful.

Ask for tourist fares and liberal stopover privileges, resort rates and illustrated booklets.

Breed's Hill

Boston Honors the Memory of Warren, Prescott, Pepperell and Other Brave Americans

One hundred and forty-nine years ago today the town of Charlestown, now the oldest part of the chief city of New England, was burned by the British, first great material sacrifice of Americans in the war for national independence.

Editors and reporters were too busy to do much writing in those eventful days, and the Essex Gazette of June 22 in that year chronicled the burning of Charlestown in what now must be regarded as a very few words:

"The Town of Charlestown, supposed to contain about 300 Dwelling Houses, besides 150 or 200 other Buildings, are almost all laid in Ashes by the Barbarity and wanton Cruelty of that infernal Villain, Thomas Gage."

Bunker Hill Day is not a legal holiday, State or otherwise. It is most peculiarly Boston's Day, and Boston would not have it otherwise. The affairs in April, at Lexington and Concord, were mere skirmishes besides the battle of Breed's Hill, the first real trial of strength and courage between the troops of the parent country and the provinces.

Although the day finally ended in defeat, the event proved the heroism of the Yankees. At Breed's Hill in Charlestown the British received a formidable check.

The great day and its heroes and heroism were recalled last night by eloquent speakers in many Charlestown banquet halls. The Governor of Massachusetts, the Mayor of Boston, member of Congress and thousands of other citizens this afternoon applaud marching sailors from the Navy Yard, Boy Scouts, troops of the National Guard, high school cadets and all the others who take part in the Bunker Hill Day procession.

A delightful touch of the historically picturesque has been added to this year's commemoration by the contribution of the Woman's Municipal League, "Old Boston Days on Beacon Hill," with the Marquis de Lafayette driving through Beacon and Mount Vernon streets with Mayor Josiah Quincy just as they drove in 1825, when the French lover of liberty returned at the age of 67 to attend the laying of the corner-stone of the monument.

Perhaps some pupil in the eighth grade will tell us how the name of Bunker Hill came to be fastened upon all the big doings of that day in June, 149 years ago.

The fighting was done on BREED'S Hill, 700 yards from Bunker Hill.

WARREN fell on Breed's Hill.

On Breed's Hill stands the Bunker Hill Monument.

WHY isn't this "Breed's Hill Day?"

Dear, Beloved, U. S. Government

Won't You PLEASE Grasp This One Little Fact?

The B[illegible] government, to increase the number of flying men, will back young men's flying clubs near big cities. When young men start a club the government will lend them "light two-seater" flying machines, and send men to teach them flying.

Our government might take the hint. Sending young men to training camps is a good idea. But in future war one man taught to fly, drop bombs, and work a machine gun from the air would be worth one thousand young men taught to parade, present arms, etc. Ten thousand first-class fliers, with a machine gun for each, would make this nation absolutely safe against invasion. WILL THE GOVERNMENT EVER GRASP THAT FACT, AND ACT ON IT?

This country should have one great flying army, by 100 per cent. greater than any other on earth. Every man in that force should be taught air fighting and be well paid. In peace they would work for the mails. In war, under one chief commander, they would fight for the nation. Backed up by submarines, they could make this country absolutely safe from attack.

Woman's Freedom

It's Recent. Some Other Things

A solemn judge decides that any woman has a right to bob her hair if she chooses and need not ask her husband's permission. The average American would say, "WHY, OF COURSE," but there isn't any "of course" about it.

Until lately the laws held that a wife's business is to do what her husband wants. The marriage service made her promise to OBEY. The laws of England allowed a husband, as a matter of right, to beat his wife as long as he used a stick no thicker than his thumb.

The Chinese squeezed their wives' feet, so that they couldn't run away, and finally thought the deformed feet beautiful. Men have been fools, women slaves. And the reform is not complete.

In a letter to a friend, Dr. Eliot, formerly president of Harvard, announces that he "swore off" and became a teetotaler in 1917 at the age of eighty-three. War convinced him that prohibition was a good thing and he was for it. That's one interesting testimonial.

On the other hand, the late Pope Leo, who lived in marvelous health and vigor until extremely old age, wrote, when long past eighty, a little poem in Latin in which he praised the good light red wines of Italy—taken in great moderation.

By a vote of 94 to 42, the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island decides to approve the Shortridge-Foster bill giving Congress power to prevent child labor exploitation. There is a verse in the New Testament about the little ones, "who always behold the face of my Father which is in Heaven," [illegible] must have been overlooked by some of the forty-two [illegible]men that voted against protecting the children.

Newspapers and the rest of the world have discussed the "diabolical ray" supposed to possess marvelous powers. It would stop an airplane in its flight, electrocute a man or even destroy armies, without direct contact, and at a distance of eight miles.

Nothing is IMPOSSIBLE. It is not even possible to imagine anything that can't be done. For what a man can IMAGINE he can DO eventually.

But that "diabolical ray" in its present stage, reminds you of the machine for manufacturing sugar by electricity. It WAS a machine, but it didn't manufacture sugar.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

MARRIAGE may be regarded as a joke by the younger generation—but just wait until they try to "laugh it off"!

* * *

Flattery without tact is as dangerous as a motor car without a brake; it is always either skidding onto the wrong side of somebody's pet vanity or landing a man in deep water when he never meant to go beyond a flirtation.

Helen Rowland

A woman never can understand why her husband wants to go out and play poker when he could stay right at home and sit up all night and swear, without losing any money.

* * *

Sweet are the uses of masculine vanity! When a girl says, "No, no—" a man always translates it as "Yes, yes—go on"! And when she tells him she doesn't love him, he merely concludes that she doesn't know her own mind.

* * *

The first recorded act of the first man was to complain to Heaven about something that a woman gave him to EAT—and he has been complaining about the same thing ever since.

* * *

A man never can understand why his wife always prefers one of those "intimate domestic dramas" to a hilarious comedy—but then no man can appreciate how it comforts a woman to see somebody else "suffer" the way she does.

* * *

Courage is a mysterious thing. A man will defy Prohibition at a dinner and get up afterward and denounce the Government in a scathing speech—and then go home and tip-toe upstairs with his shoes in his hand and his heart in his mouth.

* * *

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

LONG since the alchemists through weary years their eager search pursued, and some expectant, some with doubts and fears the shining vision wooed. From baser metals, so their dreaming went, they were to fashion gold, the yellow gold whose gleam makes all content, whose weight all hands would hold. But never was the secret way made plain, rewarding patient quest, and never, for their longing and their pain, was their desire possessed. But there is alchemy which soul and heart of mortal man may hold; some potent spell, some unrecorded art turns dross to finest gold. Not wrought by cunning in some sunless nook with strange and stealthy acts, this alchemy is fashioned of a look, attained by tender hearts. It is the power that takes hate's bitter dross and turns it into love; it is the force that makes of every loss a mark to rise above; it is the strength to meet the years' demands, to pay their heavy toll and face the future days with heaped-up hands, serene and dauntless soul. Oh, had those alchemists of other years but left their fruitless quest, then had their lives been freed from futile tears, their restless hearts found rest! Had they but watched the rose of truth unfold, so fair, so white, their joy would have surpassed the joy of gold, they would have touched delight. For greater gain and truer riches lie in good that man may do than would have come had dreams of alchemy for them at last come true.

THE HELPING HAND

Letters Not Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls or Anonymous Letters. No Names Published.

Needs Dresses on Job

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a job in a store, and I need dresses so badly that I will have to give up my position unless I can get one or two dresses to wear on the floor. I wear 40 or 42 and it must be black or dark blue. It takes all I get to pay bills I owe and support myself and child. I also need clothes for the baby seven months old. A. B. D.

Two Overcoats to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me some needy person for the following articles: One man's overcoat, one Spring overcoat, one lady's suit, size 38; a dress and shoes, size 5.

Thank you. We have asked Mrs. P. McG. to call for the things. She is size 38 and wears 5 shoes and her husband's pay is very small.

Shut-In Needs Yarn

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a shut-in and would be very thankful for bits of yarn or old sweaters or anything I could ravel out, no matter how old they were. I can use very small pieces, and it helps to pass away many lonely hours. MRS. J. F.

For an Old Lady

Editor Helping Hand:

Have you on your files an old lady about size 36? I have a nice black and white shepherds check like new and a black and white Summer dress that I would send a neat little old lady if you know of one. E. S. T.

Thank you. We have sent you the address of Mrs. A. E. P., who pleads for a seventy-five-year-old friend of hers who wears size 36.

Wants White Rags

Editor Helping Hand:

I am sending again for some clean old white rags. I have used all the kind readers sent before and would like to get some more. After using I have to burn them. MRS. A. R.

Offers Large Baby Carriage

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a large baby carriage in fair condition, that I would be pleased to send to some worthy person. The only necessary repair is to have the carriage painted. Please send the name of some needy person, and I will forward it. MRS. M. A.

Thank you. We have sent the address of Mrs. M. S., whose husband is out of work and who has a new baby and two other small children, so is unable to purchase the much-needed carriage.

$4 for Mrs. M. L. 5

Editor Helping Hand:

Am enclosing four dollars for Mrs. M. L. 5. This seems to be an exceptional case, so am stretching my purse a little. Seven—and nothing for them! "MAC."

DR. FRANK CRANE ON THE SOIL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE soil is the mother of us all.

There are as many kinds of soil as there are people to look at it.

There is the rainy and the dusty road.

There is the plowed land and the grassy meadow.

There is the bare land which seems to expose itself needlessly to the elements, and there is the thick lush soil of the Mississippi Valley.

We are all growths of the soil.

Men spring up as lilies-of-the-valley or as mountain flowers. The ideas which I have come from the soil, which is the bosom of all seeds.

Within the soil lies all life as within the fecund womb.

It only awaits the touch of the husband, who is the sun, which brings its rain and warmth to bear upon her.

Then she gives forth all things, ripens all seeds, of which mankind is one.

The soil is made up largely of forms of departed life, dead leaves and wood and bodies of animals. It is the graveyard of life at the same time that it is the birthplace of life.

Life springs from itself. It is the unexplained phenomenon of the earth.

The soil always holds some kinds of seed. For in any portion of it, taken from any depth and subjected to heat and moisture, some sorts of seeds will germinate.

I find a similar thing to be true of myself. There is a certain part of me which is as the soil and brings forth strange creatures.

Man controls his desires, to be sure, but he cannot control the rise of his desires in the first place. These desires are a part of the soil of which he is composed. To change them one would have to go back several generations.

I do not condemn my soil. I am of its humanity and nothing grows in me but has grown in other persons. And I have no excellence that is not also theirs.

Beneath us all is the deep soil of the human race.

What a cheap and tawdry thing it is therefore for one to be proud of his gifts or attainments, for those evidences of special genius are not his but belong to his race.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON STREET ASTRONOMY

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I HAD a letter the other day from a street astronomer making certain inquiries concerning the transit of Mercury across the sun's face, which occurred on the afternoon of May 7. He wanted the information for the benefit of his customers. I believe that I have covered the points of the inquiry in a recent article, but I want now to call attention to the opportunity which is open to everybody to obtain interesting glimpses of the heavenly bodies, on any fair evening, from the streets and parks of many cities and towns throughout the country. I have no census of the street astronomers of the United States, but I hope that their number runs well up in the hundreds, and I should be glad to find it thousands.

These men need no credentials other than what is furnished by the nature of their occupation. There must be a certain divine spark in him who employs himself in pointing out the stars to his fellow beings. One cannot live in that atmosphere with base thoughts and procilivities. It is the noblest of the street professions. The pabulum that it provides for the public is the finest in quality, nourishing the rarest part of man's nature.

There before all eyes, night after night, stands wide open the theatre of the universe incomparable in the splendor, the majesty, the variety, the wonder of its stupendous scenes—how marvellous that men and women, boastful of the lofty achievements of their race and of their superiority to the brutes that they despise, never look at that sublime spectacle, and do not even know that it is there! The street astronomer is the herald. He says:

"Come, and let me show you the universe. Let me show you the beauty of the strange landscapes on the moon. Its mountains stand in the telescope like cameos cut out in ivory on a field of black velvet. I will let you look upon the old sea beds of the lunar world, and introduce you to the ghosts of the vanished oceans—the Mare Crisium, the Mare Serenitatis, the Mare Nubium. I will show you mighty craters that would swallow twenty Kilaueas without making a mouthful.

"Let me show you Venus in the telescope. Shade your eyes, for she will dazzle them. Think as you look at her gleaming white crescent figure, of what she is—the earth's sister, its very twin. Is it not marvelous that the sunlight reflected from her face should thus dazzle you here millions of miles away, and cast shadows where it pours from the eye-piece of the telescope?

"Oh, I will show you the giant Jupiter, with his colored belts, where the trade winds blow on that tremendous planet; and Saturn with its polished rings, and the riches of the Milky Way; and the colored double stars; and the star clusters that sparkle like heaps of jewels."

All of these things, and more the street astronomer can exhibit to his clients with a four or five inch telescope. Are they no worth stopping a few minutes to look at? I know astronomers who have observatories, and others whose work is with theories and calculations, who occasionally stop for a look through a street telescope. Astronomers never grow weary of the heavens. They are too vast, too varied, too full of mystery and wonder. A man who has been working with a giant telescope in some great mountain observatory may descend to the lower world, and there refresh himself with the inspiring views that a little amateur instrument affords.

A street astronomer should take pains to furnish himself with a telescope of good quality. Excellence is far more important than size. He should have a battery of several glasses of different magnifying powers. He should study the facts and principles of elementary astronomy, and be familiar with all the constellations and the movements of the planets. He should be ready for every new astronomical event and primed with information about it. He should be able to give a succinct little talk on every subject that he exhibits—not something learned by heart and repeated always in the same words, but something springing from the fulness of his knowledge of the subject. Then let him be patient, considerate, painstaking, and as enthusiastic as possible, and he may safely count himself among the respected benefactors and instructors of his fellowmen.

Once-Overs

THINK OF THE BEAUTIFUL, COMFORTING THINGS INSTEAD OF WRINKLES

Are your wrinkles worrying you?

When you look at their reflection in a mirror are you downcast—do you feel rebellious against time and age?

Just what effect do your wrinkles have on you?

Does on-coming age appear a tragedy, making you sad and hopeless?

Down in the hearts of everybody who has passed beyond the years of early manhood or womanhood, there is more or less regret when the happy days of youth have passed and the awakening comes.

Do not let this awakening produce unhappy results for there is as much joy to be found going down on the other side—spiritual joy.

True that many things you have enjoyed in the past are barred, perhaps, but there is more time for beautiful and comforting thoughts of past and future.

There should be a deeper realization of what nature has to give for the enjoyment of mankind.

There should be hope and contentment that come as a result of life guided by the right ideas and the best ideals.
